NEAR-NEWS AND CHATTER FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

To the lady first correctly guessing the identity of the person of whom the following is a character sketch, and bringing a copy of this paper to The Tribune office, a cash prize of $1.00 will be given. The subject of the sketch is a prominent citizen of La Crosse. After winning one prize, a contestant will not be eligible to again compete for a period of three months.

The subject of last week's "Guess Who's Here" contest was Louis Kuehn, the winner being Miss George Holmes, 619 State street.

"Arma, virumque cano." Meaning, in the language of Virgil, "I sing of arms and of a man." However, the author of this canto was not Virgil, it was Remington. Perhaps he doesn't "teach the young idea how to shoot," but he gives the old ad idea how he can shoot. He's considerably above medium in all dimensions, athletic and—from the angle of admiring femininity—good to look upon. He's a fairly consistent clubman, and while he's no trapper he's interested in traps. Adam was made from clay before pigeons were made at all, and the original recipe for making pigeons is not extant. However, our hero feels that, as Adam eventually acquired wings, his substance will do for pigeons, wherefore he makes his pigeons out of clay. Almost all the members of the gun club can give him pointers about how to shoot, but in spite of the pointers he always gets the high score. Now, if your elevation is accurate, you should be able to break his wind at the first shot.

I've sighed for the country, its mid-summer joys. I've hated the city of heat, dust and noise till at last I have taken my avoirdupois and eloped with myself to the country. But where was the solace I hoped to attain? The breeze was elusive, for hearken, my man! You can't turn it on like an Edison fan! It was sultry and hot in the country. But Patience admonished me. Why should I grieve, for I knew that the evening would come to relieve. It did—with mosquitoes you wouldn't believe, and they ate me alive in the country. At dinner I viewed speckled plates with a sigh and sorrowing passed up the blue berry pie, for plainly nobody had battered the fly, and they let him dine first in the country. The old open bucket I hailed with delight, 'twas covered with moss and the water a fright; it tasted of iron and of frogs and—good night! I was dying of thirst in the country. The kitchen range heated the whole pesky place, one bathed in a bucket the size of one's face, a picture, dear reader, of beauty and grace, standing up to a scrub in the country. Oh! take me away from this Nature's delight, give me man's city, just for tonight, with its ice and its shower baths and white, gleaming light—take me back, take me back from the country.

It was at the county picnic, George Miller showed Charley Rawlinson a pond in which a farmer had marooned a 20 pound catfish, whereby hangs this tale which Charley denies and begs to have suppressed. George suggested that they steal the catfish, and bring it quietly down to the shore just in front of the picnicers. There George would hook it firmly to a line attached to a pole held firmly in Charley's hands. At a given signal from Charley George

MAN IS BURIED IN WELL TO NECK

A hurry call was sent to central fire department this morning to rescue a man who was nearly buried alive in a well which he was digging on South Ninth street. The department responded but the man had been rescued by the time they arrived. Attracted by a loud call for help passersby discovered him covered almost to his neck in sand which had fallen from the sides of the well and buried him. They dug him out. He was uninjured.

HOT GAME BOOKED FOR TOMORROW

A hot game of ball is expected tomorrow when those old time rivals, the Nelsons and the Clothiers, meet at League park for a nine round argument. Owing to adverse weather conditions the attendance at the park has not been the best, but with the excellent weather the prophet has promised for tomorrow, promoters are expecting a crowd that will fill the grandstand. The managers of the two teams have not announced their batteries or lineups, and it is expected that they may spring something new when the "ump" calls time.

SUMMER SCHOOLS FOR GRADE PUPILS

Classes Will Be Held in at Least Two of the Grammar Schools of the City

TO HELP THOSE WHO NEED IT

Backward Children and Those Who Would Skip a Grade to Be Given Six Week Term

Following the example set last year, when summer sessions of the grade schools were held for the benefit of backward pupils and those who wished to skip a grade, arrangements have been made for summer sessions this year. The classes will begin next Monday.

Summer school classes will be held in at least two buildings this summer, on the north side at the Logan school, Logan and Avon streets, on the south side at the Lincoln school, Ninth and Division streets. In case the number of pupils warrants it, a center at another building on the south side will be opened, but on the opening day, Monday, June 30, all south side pupils are asked to report to the Lincoln building. These schools are for three classes of children: those who wish, by summer study, to skip a grade; those, who although promoted, are weak in some subjects, and need a review before going on to the next grade; and those who on account of absence, illness or some similar cause have failed of a promotion, or whose promotion has been conditional upon their attending these summer school classes.

While these classes are intended primarily for pupils of the public schools, the attendance is not necessarily so limited. Any child in the city is welcome. We had hoped to charge no tuition, but the condition of the school funds unfortunately does not warrant our doing so this year. A fee of $2.50 for the six weeks' term will be asked, payable in advance to the teacher in charge. This is only a half of the sum charged last year. The sessions will begin every morning at 8 o'clock and last till twelve. Beginning Monday, June 30, the term will last through Friday, August 8. It is not guaranteed that a pupil attending the summer school will make the grade for which he is working. That will depend largely upon his own effort. However, it is significant that no one of the pupils who attended last summer failed of the promotion which he sought. All text books and supplies will be furnished free.

PLAN BOAT RACES FOR THE FOURTH

La Crosse to Have First Speed Events in Last Twelve Years on Holiday

On the evening of July fourth La Crosse people will witness the first motor boat races since the notable affair pulled off 12 years ago by Charlie Lush and Curran C. McConville, when John Holley's 6-mile-an-hour naphtha launch with its sheet-iron hooded engine was one of the swiftest crafts in the vicinity. Then there were less than a dozen motor boats in La Crosse. Today Congressman Esch, taking the records of boats recorded by the government here, announces there are 440 motor boats attached to the port of La Crosse.

Commodore D. S. Fairbairn of the La Crosse Motor Boat club announced this morning that preliminary arrangements for the Fourth of July races have been made and that a committee is securing prizes for the purchase of suitable prizes. There will be two classes, a free-for-all for the fast boats, and a second class for the slower craft. First, second and third place prizes will be offered. The course will be from bridge to bridge and return, the finish line being in front of the city where a judges' barge will be moored. It is planned to hold the moored in the early evening, just after sundown, so that citizens may witness them with comfort from the levee.

There are a number of fast boats here and indications are that the races will be interesting in a high degree. Theodore Thompson's Bormer holds the record for the two-cylinder class in the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association. The North side has a half dozen speed boats expected to give a good account of themselves, while there are as many more real fast ones are belonging to the South side. It is anticipated that 20 miles an hour will be approached easily. Commodore Fairbairn announces there will be a meeting of the motor boat club early next week for the purpose of appointing committees and making complete plans for the events.

LA CROSSE NORMAL SURE OF $44,800

$23,600 of Local Budget to Go for the Purchase of New Land

ALMOST SURE OF A DORMITORY

$100,000 to Be Spent for Building; Deemed Certain to Be La Crosse

A telephone message from Madison late this afternoon brings the information that the general normal appropriation carries an allotment for the building at La Crosse, in addition to the dormitories and ground and building improvements on the present properties of physical directors. The building will contain a first class gymnasium, and will be provided with class rooms. This is an innovation in normal training, and is the first recognition of the place of physical training in school work by normal authorities. The manual training building, it is expected, will be taken care of in the 1913 budget. The other improvements will proceed at once. The total provision for La Crosse, then, is as follows: Landscape and building decorations... $44,800 Dormitories... 100,000 School of physical directors (approximately)... 100,000 Total... $244,800

MADISON, Wis., June 28.—(Special.)—The total appropriations for the eight normal schools of the state for the next biennial period will be $2,614,150, according to the financial budget which has just been referred to the house. The budget bill will be taken up by the assembly either Tuesday or Wednesday. Of the total amount for the biennial period, $1,395,156 will be spent for operation, $77,400 will be spent for property repairs and maintenance, $150,000 toward the erection of a new normal school building at Eau Claire and $991,600 is to be expended for additional land and the erection of additional buildings at the present normal school. At nearly every one of the normals substantial improvements are to be made, especially at Oshkosh, Stevens Point, Milwaukee and possibly La Crosse.

$192,500 for Oshkosh At the Oshkosh normal during the next biennial period, $41,500 is appropriated for the completion of buildings, $31,000 for the purchase of additional land, $100,000 for the erection of a new main building to replace the present structure, which, with other improvements, authorized by the financial budget make a total (Continued on Page Six)

RIVER TAKES FOUR WHEN BOAT TIPS

Three Girls and Would-be Rescuer Drown at Cassville Friday

WIFE WATCHES THE TRAGEDY

Pleads with Husband to Turn Back as He Swims to Struggling Girls

CASSVILLE, Wis., June 28.—(Special.)—The bodies of the three girls who drowned here yesterday when a boat tipped over were recovered last night, near the spot where they went down. While his wife ran up and down the bank begging him to turn back, Dr. R. A. Kinney, 30, perished in a vain effort to save three young women from drowning at a camp on the shore of the Mississippi a few miles above here late Friday afternoon. The dead are: Dr. Kinney, Myrtle Judd, 22; Nora Edwards, 18; Helen Godfrey, 18. The girls went out rowing shortly before sundown. All were experienced boat women but, when in the middle of the river, they attempted to change places the boat capsized.

Drag Down Rescuer Hearing their cries, Dr. Kinney, who was seated beside his wife on the bank, jumped in and swam to their rescue. When he reached the struggling girls the boat had floated out of reach and the girls, none of whom was able to swim, were struggling in the water. When he came up they seized him and dragged him down. The bodies of Dr. Kinney and Miss Godfrey were found two hours after the accident. Mrs. Kinney is prostrated. All were residents of Lancaster and members of a party of about twelve who had gone into camp on the shore of the Mississippi last Wednesday noon, expecting to stay in the vicinity about two weeks.

Since Wednesday the young people have been spending a great part of their time in and on the river and when the three young women went for a boatride Friday afternoon it was thought to be safe, as there had been no accidents to any member of the little party.

Hunt for Bodies Mrs. Kinney spread the word through the little camp and the search for the bodies was taken up. Several hours later the body of Dr. Kinney was found within a few feet of where he was seen to go down. Up to a late hour Friday night none of the other bodies had been recovered. Camp was not broken by the other members of the party, who wished to remain and continue the search today.

BUYS THE ROW TO KEEP CITY CLEAN

Alderman Torrance Purchases Jay Street Houses to Make Them Workmen's Flats

With the avowed intent of preventing Jay street from ever going back to its former status of La Crosse's "red light" district, Alderman William J. Torrance, former mayor, has purchased the Pratt property along the south side of Jay street between Front and Second streets. The property consists of a lot and two houses which were once the most notorious vice dens in the city, before the clean-up two years ago. Mr. Torrance already owns the adjacent vacant lot.

The deal was negotiated through Frank G. Roth, real estate agent. It will be closed early in July, it was said today, as soon as the title can be looked up. Mr. Torrance intends to remodel the brick houses into a series of flats for workmen. "When the Torrance foundry was first in business, years ago," said Alderman Torrance today, "those houses were the respectable dwellings of workmen. I can see no reason why the district should not become once more the clean and wholesome neighborhood it was in the beginning."

HOUSEBOAT SUNK.

A houseboat which was being towed up the Mississippi river Monday evening by P. E. Engh, Fred Nichols and William Nichols with a launch, was sunk by the waves of an unknown steamboat. The boys were compelled to work all day Tuesday to raise the boat and bail it out. It has been anchored at Stony Point, where the boys will spend a vacation.

COUNCIL REFUSES SALOON LICENSES

Schrank Cafe and Law Hotel Buffet Operator Turned Down at Meeting Last Night

146 APPLICATIONS ARE PASSED

Policemen Accused by Alderman Grover; Grand Crossing to Be Cleaned Up

One hundred and forty-six applicants, or six less than are now operating saloons in La Crosse, were granted liquor licenses by the common council in special meeting last night. Two of the applicants, W. A. Atchison, who runs the Hotel Law Buffet on Second and Pearl streets, and J. F. Schrank, proprietor of the Cafe, 412 Main street, were refused licenses. The vote on the Schrank license was seven to twelve against granting the license. Aldermen Bartl, Collins, Kohn, Kroner, Rybold, Schneebberger and Worth voted in favor of granting Schrank a license while Aldermen Bedessem, Grover, Houska, Kempter, Mahoney, Roellig, Roth, E. O. Schultz, Robert Schulze, Smith, Strauss and Torrance voted against it. Aldermen Neumann and Downs were not present at the meeting. All of the aldermen present voted against granting Atchison a license with the exception of Alderman Frank Kohn.

It was announced at the opening of the argument that the notorious "Log Cabin" saloon on Pearl street will be closed and remodeled into a store building. The proprietors of the Log Cabin have made no application for a license.

The 146 applicants passed were voted through in one bunch while those presented by Mr. Schrank, Atchison and Olaf Brown of Grand Crossing were held for discussion. The Schrank license was voted down on the grounds that the upstairs department of the cafe is virtually a group of wine rooms which were frequented by women of questionable character. Alderman Mahoney raised the question of the legality of the license under which Mr. Schrank is now operating the place, on the grounds that the bar was not operated in 1907 the time the Baker law stipulates as an old location. It is illegal to grant liquor licenses for new locations when more than one saloon to every 250 inhabitants are in operation in a city.

The Atchison application was opposed by several aldermen on the grounds that immoral women were allowed to frequent the place. Debate Brown Application The liveliest debate took place over the Olaf Brown application and while he was granted a license several measures were introduced to better the conditions at Grand Crossing. It was finally decided that Olaf Brown is running his place as respectable as possible under the circumstances. The vicinity of Grand Crossing is infested by tramps and they naturally flock to the nearest saloon. It was argued that if the Brown saloon were closed the tramps would invade the residence section of north side. Friends of Mr. Brown pointed out that he is physically capable of handling the rough element with whom he deals.

Policemen Accused Alderman Grover created a sensation by announcing that he held affidavits made by north side residents that two patrolmen had been seen drunk in the Brown saloon. Mayor Ori Sorensen then announced that the two patrolmen in question will be called to account at the next meeting of the fire and police commission. Mr. Grover declined to state who were the patrolmen accused.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Both ordering the chief of police to put three or more patrolmen on duty at and near Grand Crossing was referred to the committees on police and finance and the mayor and city attorney.

Alderman Grover introduced an amendment to Section 25 of Ordinance 14 to provide for the establishment of a rock pile and for a ball and chain gang as means of punishing vagrancy. The amendment was referred to the committees on police and finance.

An amendment to ordinance 25 was introduced by Alderman Collins to compel pool rooms and bowling alleys to close at twelve o'clock at night and placing the fine from $10 to $35 in case of violation. The amendment was referred to the committees on ordinance and licenses other than liquor.

To Pave La Crosse Street

A resolution ordering the board of public works to advertise for bids on the brick paving of La Crosse street from Fourth street to the Chicago and Northwestern tracks, and Fourth street from Third to the tracks, was referred to the streets and alleys committee. The ordinance permitting the Burlington railroad company to construct a cross over track on Second street went to its third reading and was passed. The board of public works was ordered by the passage of a resolution to advertise for bids on the clean-

CHICAGO, June 28.—With the entire region stretching from Pennsylvania to the Rockies engulfed in a terrific heat wave that has cost 50 lives and over 200 prostrations, government weather bureaus issued special warnings today forecasting possible temperatures of 100 before the hot spell is broken.

The high temperature, combined with the broad zone of affected territory and the official prediction that the heat wave will not be broken for at least 48 hours, produced a heat situation not duplicated in the west and the middle west for many years.

Crop Loss Heavy. Crop damage that cannot be estimated until after the heat wave is broken has been done in all sections of the west. The winds are heavy and the sun's rays are burning up thousands of dollars' worth of crops. Chicagoans woke today to find the city baked by a blistering southwest wind and the mercury climbing toward the 100 mark predicted by Forecaster Cox. Whole families spent the night in the parks. Business men returning to their work today found the Loop district a veritable furnace.

101 at Cleveland. CLEVELAND, O., June 28.—Yesterday's record of 101 degrees—the hottest June day in Cleveland in years—will be surpassed today, was the prediction of the weather forecaster. The death toll of the terrific heat of the past 24 hours was seven adults and ten babies, while there were scores of prostrations.

Ice Famine in Cincinnati. CINCINNATI, O., June 28.—Intense suffering, which accompanied the terrific heat, was aggravated today especially among the poor, by the ice famine caused by the strike of ice wagon drivers, engineers and firemen. Lines of citizens, many blocks long, waited at daylight before the few plants that have a limited supply of ice on hand. Five dead and scores of prostrations was the toll of the heat today.

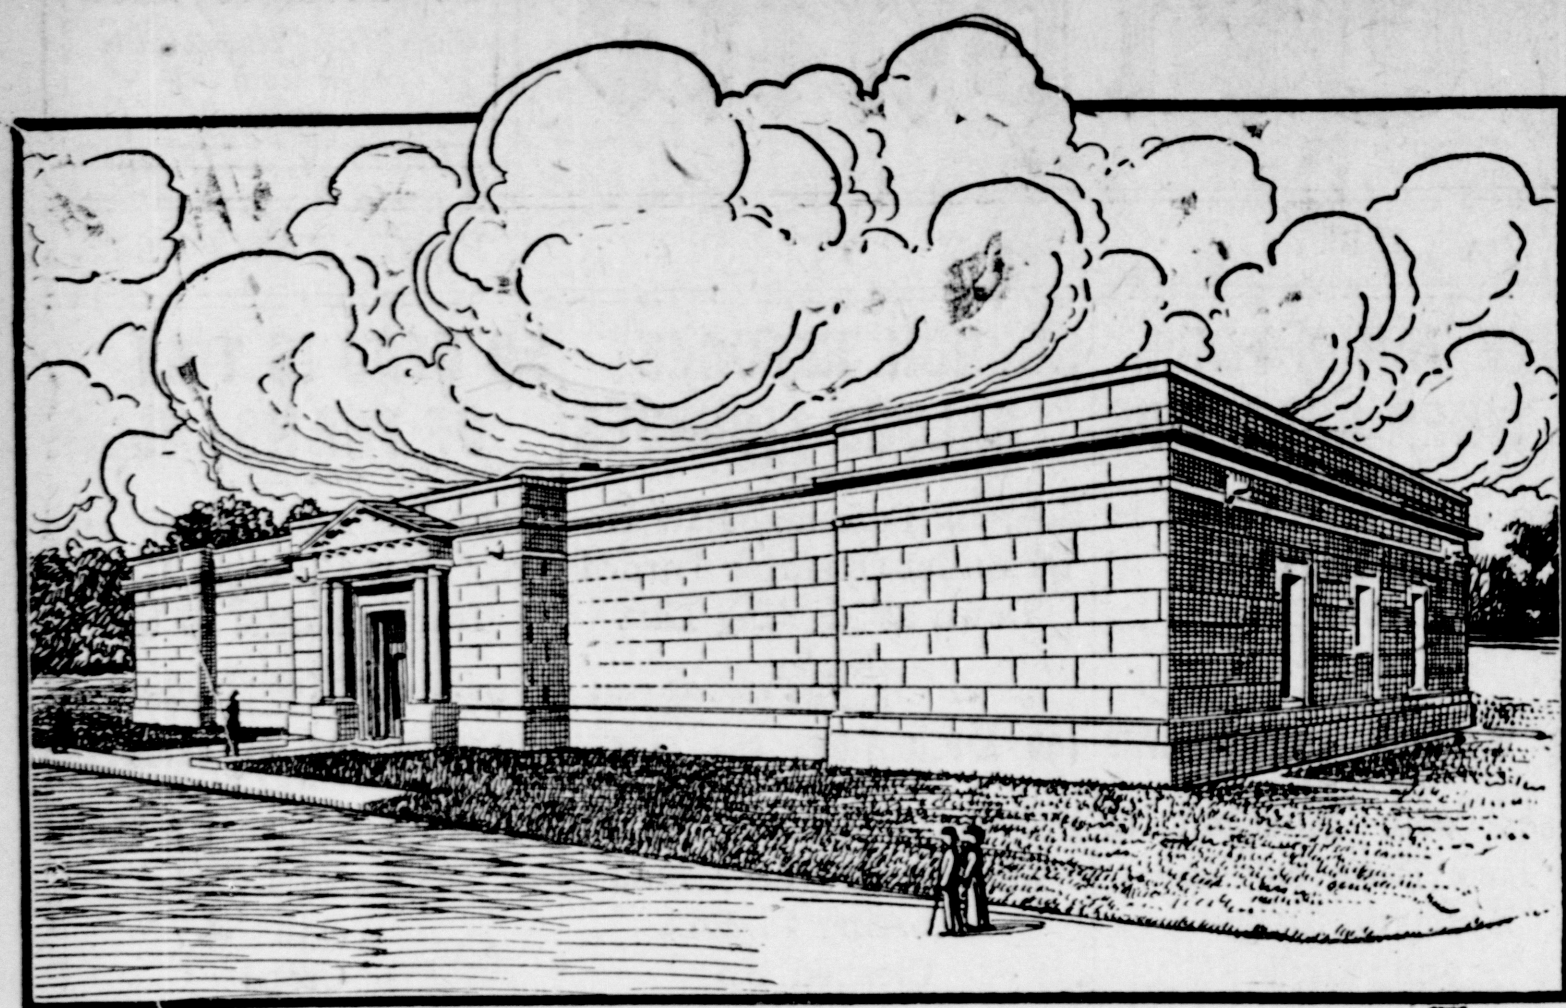

SAMPSON RETURNS FROM CONVENTION

G. E. Sampson, who has been a delegate of the Silver Lake Lodge of the national convention of the B. of R. T. at San Francisco, is at his post at the North side offices of the Milwaukee railroad here.

In talking to a reporter of a San Francisco newspaper, Sampson said that he had traveled nearly 6,000 miles in sixteen different states and over seven different railroads, but failed to see any place that he would rather call home than good old Wisconsin. The convention was in session fifteen days and much important business was transacted for the good of the order. Mr. Sampson expects to meet with the Portage local lodge next Thursday to make his report and post the trainmen on the important changes that were made in the by-laws at the convention.

WHITE NO BETTER IS REPORT TODAY

C. F. White is no better today. At the St. Francis hospital, where the well known real estate man is lying, paralyzed from the neck down, it was said today that his condition is unchanged. He is conscious but not in pain. Paralysis resulted from a fall from a horse on his North Dakota ranch last Saturday.

PIONEER HEADLINERS

Old-timers Tell of Early Day Thrills and Smiles

THE NEW TRAGEDY OF THE BELLA MAC

By Mark R. Byers.

All the news is not always printed. Often newspapers keep back details which will do more harm than good, but it is seldom that a "feature story" with a tragedy in it, growing out of one of the biggest newspaper stories that ever happened in La Crosse, can be buried for thirty years. Yet it was only this week that one of the most startling features of the Bella Mac explosion in 1882 came to light.

The story came to The Tribune from an entirely unexpected source. It came embodied in a letter of protest against some of the details of the story of the Bella Mac explosion, as recalled by David Bailey. The letter has the stamp of authority, too, for it is signed by none other than Louis Suelflohn, who was mate on the ill-fated Bella. Mr. Suelflohn is now a prosperous farmer of Harmony, Minn., but he still clings to the memory of his adventurous, youthful days on the river.

To Soften Grief

The new story which Mr. Suelflohn uncovered in his letter is the tale of a deliberate deception, carried out to its last conclusion, to soften a little the grief of a sister over her brother's death. Up to the present the story has never been known to more than two people—the captain and mate of the Bella Mac.

The story concerns two La Crosse people of the days of thirty years ago. Inquiry among the old settlers now here finds no knowledge of them, and it is thought the woman for whose sake the deception was carried out has long since discovered the truth—"on the other side."

"A Mrs. Woods" is the nearest identification that Mr. Suelflohn comes in his letter. She lived in La Crosse, he says. She had a brother, Frank McIntire, who was second pilot of the Bella Mac. McIntire was one of the men who were killed when the vessel's boiler blew up through the carelessness or deliberate suicidal intent of the engineer. Eight others went with McIntire to eternity.

At Two Mile Island

The Bella Mac blew up at Two Mile island, according to Mr. Suelflohn's story of the disaster, and floated down as far as Brownsville before she sunk. Skiffs from Brownsville put off and gathered the survivors who were clinging to pieces of wreckage. Men started immediately looking for the bodies, and all were recovered but three—Frank McIntire, Swift Bell, and an unidentified fireman.

All the bodies were torn beyond recognition by the explosion, and it was hard, even for their shipmates to distinguish.

David McCamish was clerk of the Bella Mac. The body of his brother William was one of those recovered. The McCamish brothers came from Cassville. When the McDonald brothers came down from La Crosse, the survivors and the bodies of the victims were placed on their boat, the Dan Hines, and carried back to La Crosse. News of the disaster had preceded their arrival, and the levee was thronged with friends and relatives of those on the boat, anxious to find the fate of the crew.

Among the crowd was Mrs. Woods, nearly frantic with anxiety about her brother, Captain W. W. Gordon of the Bella Mac, as gently as possible, broke the news to her that her brother had died. She demanded his body for burial.

Buried Wrong Body

The captain was dismayed. He had not the heart to tell her that Frank McIntire's body had not been recovered. He feared she could not bear the shock. And so he turned over to her, as that of her brother, the remains of David McCamish. And as Frank McIntire the body of David McCamish is buried today in Oak Grove cemetery, according to the word of Louis Suelflohn, mate of the Bella Mac.

The bodies of the three men which were not found directly after the accident were never recovered. "They are still in the river, I believe," says Mr. Suelflohn.

There were three McCamish brothers on the Bella Mac, and all three were lost, according to Mr. Suelflohn's minute account of the explosion. The boat blew up at 2:14 the morning of April 7, 1882. Mr. Suelflohn says. The day was Good Friday. He gives a list of the officers of the craft as follows: Captain W. W. Gordon, Frank McIntire, second pilot; James Tully, first engineer; Charles Monahan, second engineer; David McCamish, clerk; and Louis Suelflohn, mate. The crew number—sixteen.

For the Ironing Board.

Pad the ironing board with a thick quilt or old blanket, then lay the board on the table and cut a piece of heavy muslin so it will fit the board loosely. Seam it up, leaving the slip open at each end. Make two of these slips and change them frequently, says Mother's Magazine. Thus the ironing board is always clean, and the padding will not have to be changed for months.

MISS PHOEBE'S STRATEGY

By A. MARIA CRAWFORD

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"So you are engaged to Dr. Alec Scott?" Eleanor's Aunt Phoebe questioned her the day of her arrival for a fortnight's visit. "He is a middle-aged man and you—how old are you, Eleanor?"

"Twenty-two this month." "How did it happen?" snapped her mother's old maid sister. "Just drifted into it, I suppose, as people do in little towns. Nice stepmother you'll make at twenty-two. It takes age and a certain finesse that you don't possess to make a successful stepmother, Eleanor. You'll make the child miserable."

"Indeed, I won't, Aunt Phoebe. He is a dear little thing and says that he is sincerely fond of me."

"Pshaw! His father makes him talk that way. Widowers are all alike, the world over. Wait until the ceremony has been performed and he knows that he has you. He'll let the boy make faces at you. I know. Now tell me all about it. As soon as your mother wrote me that you were engaged to him, I invited you to make me a visit. I wanted to know all the circumstances and I knew well enough that your mother wouldn't tell everything. She has always been afraid you would be an old maid. Well, I'm one and there are worse things." The old lady, in her straight back chair, took off her glasses, wiped them and put them in a case she carried in a side pocket of her black satin gown. "How did it happen?" Her eyes were almost merry.

"He began coming by the house and asking me to go on calls with him. He brought me baskets of fruits and things like that, but I just supposed he was being neighborly until the young fellows quit calling on me. I was so mad at my friends then for taking so much for granted that I thought I would give them all good reason to be jealous."

"Did you want to make all the men jealous?"

"Yes, all of them that had pretended to like me."

"Wasn't there one that you rather singled out, Eleanor?"

"Well," hesitated the girl, absently turning the solitary back and forth on her left hand, "I wanted to hurt Jim Mayfield more than anybody else. We had always been such pals."

"Seems to me you are old enough to know better than to try to be pals with the man you love."

"But I don't love Jim—that is not in the way you mean."

"Then don't be so quick to deny it. There, there, I won't be cross any more. It's just my way of finding out the things I want to know."

"I have a nice surprise for you, niece."

"She unlocked a bureau-drawer in the room she had assigned to Eleanor and motioned the girl to come to her. "Here are some treasures for you! Your grandmother's pearls are in this case and a pair of bracelets that belonged to your Aunt Jane are in this red velvet box. The lace fan and set of combs were mine when I was a girl."

"O Aunt Phoebe! I don't know how to thank you," Eleanor began.

"Just take that diamond ring of Dr. Scott's and put it away somewhere. It irritates me to look at it. Stepmother, indeed! Change your frock and hurry downstairs. I hear voices. The young people are already coming to call on you."

For that first evening Eleanor found that her aunt had arranged a dinner dance at the country club. Grounds and galleries were bright with many Japanese lanterns, and the pleasure boats on the river below had been strung with lights that were clearly mirrored in the water. In a soft pink gown with her Aunt Phoebe's wonderful cameos on her breast and arms, Eleanor made a lovely picture.

"I'll teach her what real love means," Aunt Phoebe promised herself as her eyes were roving from the girlish beauty over the crowd of happy dancers. In the doorway, under its arch of great pink petunias, she saw Jim Mayfield, Jr. She would have known him anywhere. He had the same brown hair and dancing brown eyes that had characterized the elder Jim in the days when Miss Phoebe was the toast of the town. When his father had asked her to marry him, she had laughed and told him to wait until she had seen other men. Then she sailed for a summer abroad and when she came home, happy and eager to see her sweetheart again, she heard that he had married the day before she landed. If Miss Phoebe cared, nobody had known, but the fact remained that she refused many handsome suitors and, at her father's death, moved away to another city and lived in magnificent splendor, an eccentric old maid as far as the world could see, but in her heart, mother to an enduring dream.

She crossed the ballroom and held out her hand. "I've been looking for you, young man. You must not tell Eleanor about my telegram. That's between you and me."

She gave a little silvery peal of laughter that echoed the happiness of her far-off youth. Her cheeks were delicately flushed, and as she walked across the floor, her hand laid lightly within his arm, she might have been the Miss Phoebe of fifty years before.

"Maybe Eleanor won't be glad to see me," he said doubtfully.

"Wait and see for yourself!" laughed Miss Phoebe happily.

galleries they came face to face with Eleanor and Dr. Alec Scott. The two men bowed formally, and Eleanor presented the physician to her aunt. Miss Phoebe was suddenly reserved, and when the doctor turned to Eleanor and said that he must hurry to catch his train neither of the women made any effort to detain him.

"Why didn't your doctor friend have the good manners to come and greet me as soon as he came to my party?" demanded Miss Phoebe jellily.

"It was this way, Aunt Phoebe," began Eleanor. "I met him quite by accident as he came in and when I asked him to go and speak to you, he said that he only had a few minutes here between trains and that what he had time to say, he wanted to say to me. He didn't want me to come here on a visit—he said that he knew it meant our engagement would be broken—so he hurried on the first train after I left to urge me to marry him at once. To make a long story short, I gave him his ring and it's all over. Thank goodness!" There was real relief in the girl's voice. "Come, meet some of these pretty girls, Jim!"

"I want to talk to the prettiest girl here and she is you," he dared, right before Miss Phoebe's laughing eyes.

"You are certainly your father's son, Jim," she said and as they moved away, a slender figure in pink beside Mayfield's great body: Miss Phoebe's eyes grew misty and the figures blurred into indistinct images while out of the past, a little ghost of yesterday came drifting on the waves of soft music and crept into her old heart to grieve with her over the things that might have been.

"Here's a little bench, where we can sit down and talk things over. When did you get here?" demanded Eleanor.

"Tonight at eight fifteen."

"Business?" she inquired briefly.

"Yes, urgent," he returned just as briefly.

"Will you be here long?"

"It depends on how interested

Where Women Run Cars.

The suggestion that women may be employed as street car conductors in Philadelphia has brought out the fact that the women of Latin America, usually thought of as sheltered, retiring and unprogressive, have been doing this kind of work for years. During the war between Chili and Peru, when all the men of Chili were needed at the front, women took their places on the street cars, and Santiago, Valparaiso and several other cities have had women conductors ever since.

Old Mother Hubbard, no doubt, would have scored the same result had she gone to the refrigerator.

Daddy's Bedtime

The Emperor Story — And His Little Feathered Guests.

The Swallows Built a Nest on the Tent.

"YES," said daddy; "very odd places our little friends, the birds, sometimes choose for building their nests."

"What was the oddest place you've ever heard of, daddy?" Jack and Evelyn asked as they leaned over his chair.

"Well, let me see," daddy replied. "There was once a very great soldier named Charles. He lived about 400 years ago. He was the ruler of Spain and Germany, and he had many wars, in which he generally was the winner."

"In one of these wars this emperor with his army pitched camp before an old town which was particularly hard to take. In those days towns had high walls built around them."

"When the Emperor Charles and his army tried to take the town of which I speak they knew they would be a long time winning it. So they pitched their camp there. All over the great field outside the city walls rose the tents of the army, and largest of all was the tent of the Emperor Charles."

"It was springtime, and the little birds were coming back to that pleasant country from the winter homes far off in the lands where grew the orange and the olive trees."

"Among these home returning birds was a pair of swallows, and when Mrs. Swallow looked about for a place in which to place her nest she took a notion to build it high upon the emperor's tent. It was carefully concealed, and at first no one noticed it, but by and by some camp busybody spied it out and told some one else. One day quite a large party stood staring at the little swallow mother brooding over her eggs."

"The little swallow seems to think the emperor's tent but a shed," some camp joker said, trying to make fun of the good emperor's simple ways."

"The joker did not know the emperor was in his tent and was greatly frightened when he strode out to see what they were talking about."

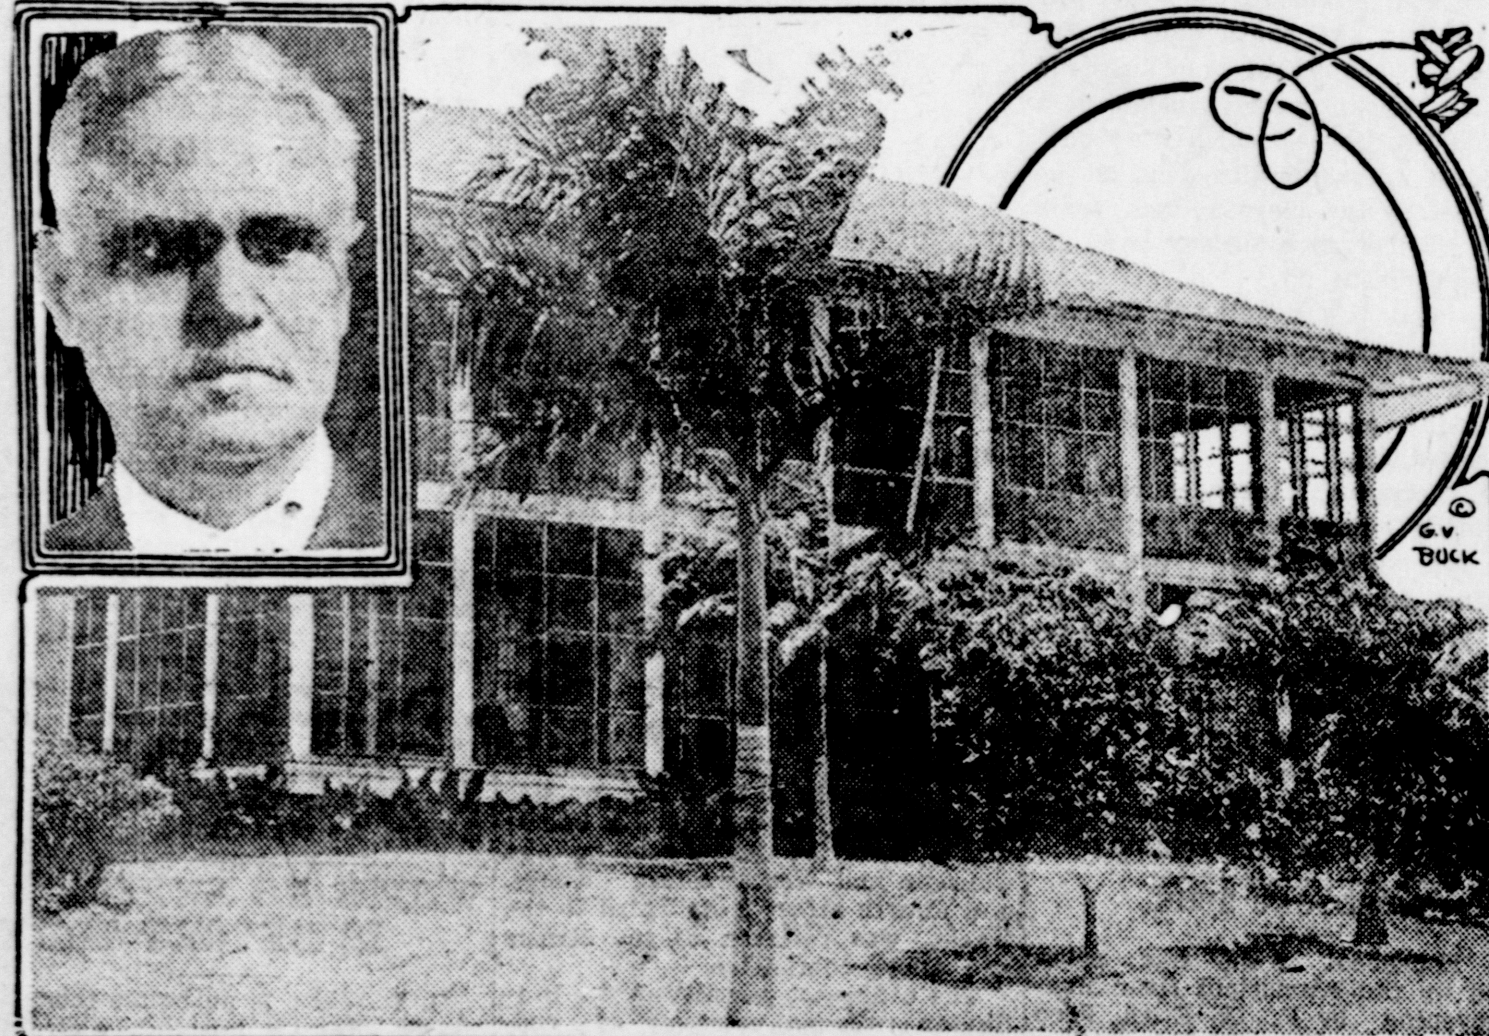

"When he saw the little feathered mother he said: 'She is my guest. Let no one dare hurt or trouble her.'"

"At last the army made a hole through the walls of the city, and the soldiers began to pack up their tents to take them with them when they moved into the town."

"Only the emperor's tent was left standing, for, as he went, he looked at the nest in which the little swallow mother now had her feathered babies. They were not yet quite ready to fly."

"Leave it standing," Emperor Charles said to the soldiers who stood ready to take down his tent. And so the tent stood till the swallow's little brood had learned to fly and gone off to find homes of their own."

COL. GOETHALS HAS PLEASANT HOME ON ISTHMUS; SURROUNDED BY COOL, WIDE VERANDAS AND SCREENED TO BAR MOSQUITOES

Latest picture of Colonel Goethals, and his home at Culebra on the isthmus.

The home of Colonel Goethals, the builder of the Panama canal, at Culebra is admirably adapted to the hot climate of the canal zone. Wide verandas surrounding the house allow the free circulation of air, and screens completely shut out the mosquitoes. All government buildings in the canal zone have those two features, and because of the continued warfare against the mosquito, yellow fever has been entirely wiped out on the isthmus and malaria is less common than ever before.

OUR PLAYGROUNDS ARE DOING A GOOD WORK

The good results of play grounds, and parks, upon the character of the young people in a given community is reported without variance. It is therefore quite natural that La Crosse should have experienced benefits from the work done along this line for the community. The results attained are quite uniformly first measured in the records of the juvenile courts, and in La Crosse this has been true. There has been some discussion of the matter in The Tribune, and that readers may observe the interest attached to our experience by other municipalities, we quote from the Madison State Journal:

"In noting the spread of playground work, it is interesting to find that there is a well-defined relation between it and juvenile delinquency—an appreciable falling off in law-breaking among boys and girls being reported in cities where playgrounds have been established. For instance, last year in the city of La Crosse but one boy was brought before the judge and not a single girl. During the former year, before the establishment of the playgrounds, nineteen children, sixteen boys and three girls, were arraigned, some of whom had eventually to be sent to the reform schools.

"The judge in commenting on this decrease said: 'I attribute this splendid showing practically entirely to the public playgrounds which were in operation in La Crosse for the first time during the summer now gone. As in every other city in which they have been tried out, these recreative spots for children, places at which their play is directed, have more than demonstrated their usefulness to the city of La Crosse. Boys and girls who would otherwise be out upon the streets and in various ways engaging in mischief for mere want of something better to do, are now drawn to the playgrounds where they are carefully watched.'

"Physically and morally the public playgrounds are of incalculable value in the life of a child. They are one of a city's great assets. Play is a lever of progress."

THE SINS OF THE FATHERS

Dean Vaughan of the University of Michigan's medical department cited a striking illustration for the eugenical position when, in an address before the American Association for the Study of the Feeble-Minded, he detailed the history of the Kallikak family. Naturally this is not the right name, but for obvious reasons it has been used.

At the beginning of the Revolutionary war Michael Kallikak had a son by a nameless, feeble-minded girl. From this son have descended in a direct line 480 individuals. Of these 143 are known to have been feeble-minded and only forty-six are known to have been normal. The rest are unknown or doubtful. Thirty-six have been illegitimate, thirty-three, mostly females, immoral, three epileptic and eight kept houses of ill-fame. Eighty-two died in infancy.

After the war Kallikak married a woman of sterling stock. From this marriage have come forty-six descendants in a direct line. Of these only three have turned out badly, two being alcoholic and one immoral. The normal children of this legitimate union have been lawyers, doctors, judges, educators, traders, landholders, etc.

This is a case, often described before, which Dr. Vaughan took from Goddard's text book on the subject merely for purposes of illustration. It affords a graphic view of the responsibilities of parenthood. Recent investigations in this state show family histories that are just as forcible examples of the inexorable law that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children even unto the third and fourth generation.

In all our discussions of eugenics, however, it is strange that such slight attention is paid to the fact that we now have a law in certain states forbidding the marriage of the feeble-minded or of those afflicted with certain disease. For those found guilty a fine from $500 to $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, is fixed.

PEACE BE UNTO YOU AND YOU TWO, TOO

We find pleasure in quoting from the Oshkosh Northwestern an editorial in which "Jim" Thompson, perhaps, also will find pleasure:

"The state divorce counsel for La Crosse county has been keeping track of the marriage and divorce business in that county for the past two years, and he finds that the relative proportions of prizes and blanks is practically nine to one. In other words, during his term of office there have been recorded in that county 719 marriages, while during the same time seventy-four divorces have been granted, indicating that out of every ten couples married one couple later seeks a severance of the matrimonial bonds. It is contended, however, that the record would not be so favorable but for the efforts of the divorce counsel himself, who acts as a go-between in trying to adjust differences of couples who come to the conclusion they cannot get along together, but whose troubles are not actually as serious as they imagine. Through the mediation of the divorce counsel sixty-three couples who had applied for divorce were prevailed upon to discontinue the proceedings and try it again.

"This is certainly a very creditable record for La Crosse county divorce counsel, and at least indicates that he has tried to carry out the spirit of the law prescribing his duties and done his best to earn his fees. Apparently he has managed to reconcile the differences of practically one-half the couples who have applied for divorce, which is a record of success in this line that is as remarkable as it is unusual. If other divorce counsel in other counties have done as well it would go far toward justifying the law providing for these officials. Perhaps, however, the La Crosse counsel is a better pacifier and harmonizer than is the average man, and at least it would appear so from his claimed record of accomplishment."

La Crosse county thanks Mr. Thompson for his good work, and regrets that, for the present, his valuable experience as a domestic peace dove is of no personal use to him. However, as "Jim" has purchased a fine lot in a residence section of the city, the time may come when his prowess as a pacifier may save him an appeal to The Hague. Here's to orange blossoms and his own brand of domestic felicity.

HOW ABOUT THE OTHER WAY ROUND

Representative Mann says that he is opposed to the administration plan of currency reform because he thinks it would result in placing the banking business of the country under the control of partisan politics.

The same objection was raised to the passage of the interstate commerce law establishing an interstate commerce commission. It would place the railroads under the influence of partisan politics. The railroad rate commission of Wisconsin suffered the adverse criticism of the same crowd.

Mr. Mann does not seem to object, however, to the present conditions which place partisan politics under the domination of the banking interests.

We notice by the dispatches that the Ford Automobiles company has just declared an annual dividend of $10,000,000.00. This will not prove embarrassing to John Anderson, elder son of Dr. Wendell A. Anderson, who is one of the seven stockholders of the institution.

Camille Flammarion, the author, has one of his books bound in human skin. That's all right, for the writing of books has become a skin game, anyway.

It costs Uncle Sam only one-tenth of a cent to wash and iron a greenback, and he doesn't leave any saw edges or tear out the buttonholes, either.

Detective arrested a New York dealer for selling over ripe cheese. There are some clues so strong that even a detective cannot miss them.

A Washington preacher says young men calling upon young women Sunday evening, should be led to church. They will be eventually, doctor.

"Why not go to Europe?" asks a steamship company's advertisement. Well, for one reason, the city taxes are due now.

When a girl tells you she doesn't eat more than a bird, it is well to remember that the ostrich is also a bird.

The Hiss silk bank has failed again. A New York woman has lost $440 which she carried in her stockings.

Quips and Cranks
and Wanton Wiles

Swatting the Fly
A lonesome fly got in our house
One day not long ago,
The family armed itself at once
And started for the foe.

Potato mashers, trying pans
And baseball bats we got,
And broomsticks, and we started in
With might and main to swat.

We smashed three plate glass mirrors
And
Tore down the chandelier;
We broke a $40 vase,
And wrecked a jardiniere.

We shattered seven windows and Demolished statues,
We knocked down both the kitchen
stoves
With many vain regrets.

We broke the goldfish globe and spread
Destruction in our path,
Our fighting blood was up and naught
Seemed to appease our wrath.

It seems a shame to stop and think
What father's got to buy,
We swatted everything we could,
But didn't swat the fly.

The Man for the Job
In certain circles the word "seed" is used to describe a man who invariably loses money in a poker game, the idea being that the poor, miserable wretch is the seed from which develops a fine crop of money for the good players.

Frank P. Morse, who hails from Florida, and tours the country heavily distinguished as a high-strung southern gentleman, is known everywhere he goes as "Seed Morse."

One day in New York last February some of Morse's friends were discussing who would be in Woodrow Wilson's cabinet.

"I'll tell you," said one of the friends, "how we can fill one job. Let's write a letter to Wilson recommending, because of his extraordinary knowledge of seed and plants, Seed Morse for secretary of agriculture."—Popular Magazine.

Questions Without Answers
"Declare to goodness, ma'am," said the elevator man in the Woolworth building, "you've hardly any idea of the questions people can ask. One man looked in here the other day and asked me how many windows this building had in it. Another one, nice looking old man he was, says to me the other day, he says: 'Who is Mr. Woolworth going to leave this building to when he dies?'"

His Confidence in Burglars
They are having such a carnival of crime in Cleveland nowadays (according to certain papers) that a lady daren't go to the door to meet the postman unless she is armed to the teeth. It is told of a Lakewood woman that she heard a slight noise, or thought she did, the other night and said to her husband:

"Oh, John! There are burglars in the house!"
"Well, see what they want," grunted John, only half awake.
"But you must go down!"
"No, you go down. No gentlemanly burglar would dare strike a lady!"

Her Strong Hint
"Miss Pinkie, how do you like my new hat?"
"I like it ever so much better, Mr. Smykins, when you are holding it in your hand."—Chicago Tribune.

The Situation Changed
When a strapping big young man with a constitution of iron meets a fragile girl who might be blown away by a strong puff of wind, but who looks at him with soulful eyes, and tells him that she thinks he is handsome, it is wholly useless to try to convince him that there is anything in eugenics.

Running Rings Around Nimrod
"Cy" Cummins, the biggest, tallest and hottest member of the Maryland legislature, was a guest one night at a "bear supper" given at a club in his county. Bear meat was served, and on the stage at the end of the banquet hall there was a tremendous live bear.

Nobody could figure out why the live bear should be there. Speech after speech was made, and joke after joke was sprung. But nobody referred to the large and ferocious animal. At last the toastmaster arose and made these few remarks:

"I now introduce to you Cy Cummins, a member of our state legislature. He is the man who wrestled with the bear which you see now on the platform. He will tell you how he did it."

"Gentlemen," said Cy, lifting his six feet six inches to their ultimate destination, "to say that I wrestled with that bear is to state a sordid and sinister untruth. I never wrestled with a bear in my life. Whenever I turn my attention to one of those things, I step nimbly up behind him, grab him by the ears and kick him to death."—Popular Magazine.

Why He Preferred Cash
The editor of a great magazine sent for a certain author who had submitted an unsolicited manuscript. "I am glad to make your acquaintance, sir," said the editor, enthusiastically. "The story you sent us is fastidiously splendid. But why use a perfectly splendid? Let us publish it over your own name and it will make you famous."

"I'm not after fame," objected the author. "It's money I want."

"But you'll get just as much money in either case."

"No, I won't. If I publish it over my own name my wife will get the money."

"I haven't introduced myself," she said, with easy masterful calm, "but I've just opened the house at 442 as a boarding-house. You ain't going to hold me, of course"—this to the "police"—"and, anyhow, you know where to find me in case you want me. There's room tonight in my house for you all." She turned, with her eternal air of mistress in any situation, to Miss Harding. "Come, dress and pack up your night things, my dear. We can move the trunks tomorrow." Mechanically, Miss Harding obeyed, and then Miss Jones. Suddenly Mr. Estrilla, who had been ministering to Mrs. Moore by the door, spoke up and asked:

"My seester, too?"
"She's sick, ain't she?" inquired Mrs. Le Grange, as if for an instant that gave her pause. "Then the poor thing needs it worst of all!" she answered her own argument.

"Come on!" She dashed away, lightly in spite of her bulk, Estrilla following.
While Rosalie Le Grange was preparing to move the invalid on the top floor, the police and the coroner straightened out affairs a little. There was much man in Tommy North. If he had played the craven in the first rush of his gruesome discovery, it was because he had wakened to that state of tense depression which comes with the sudden departure of drunkenness. He became defiant now; whereupon the police began to bully. While they were trying to make Mrs. Moore admit that she had not seen Tommy North come up the stairs, a detective sergeant put the sneering question to her—

"Well, who else could have done it? Who else has been here?"
And the inrush of memory brought a little shriek from Mrs. Moore.

"Mr. Wade—the gentleman who called tonight!" she cried. All at once her suspicions left the branded Mr. North. Mr. Wade had come late in the evening—and that, in the doctor's opinion, was just about the time when Captain Hanska must have died. Mr. Wade had called two or three times before, always at night. Trembling, she found his card, "Lawrence Wade, Curfew Club," in the plated tray at the hall door. Suddenly Miss Harding, who had been refusing all light on the events of the evening, gave a little shriek.

"Why, they were quarreling when I went—" she cried. Then she stopped, as though fearful of her own words. The police turned on her. In a tumble of words and emotions, she told what she knew. Mr. Wade's late call, the high words, the fact that none had heard a sound from Captain Hanska's room after Wade left the house—that was enough for the coroner and the detectives. They packed Tommy North—solier, pale, but now thoroughly collected—into the patrol wagon, sent the hue and cry to the Curfew Club after Mr. Wade, put the house under guard, and called their day's work done.

And the rest of the Moore establishment, having first received a dreadful warning concerning the fate of absconding witnesses, finished that uneasy night under the ministrations of Rosalie Le Grange at 442.

CHAPTER II.
The Chief.

Inspector Martin McGee, the middle-aged solid executive of the New York detectives, sat in his businesslike office running over the reports on the Hanska murder, now less than a calendar day old but already the subject of those innumerable extras which the newspapers were shouting under his windows. Nothing in the formal documents before him served to give him any new light. Thomas North, advertising agent, at present locked up to await examination, had announced discovery of the murder. When he made the announcement, he was spotted and daubed with blood. Captain Hanska had then been dead at least an hour. For the period in which Hanska must have died, North proved a perfect alibi—unless the landlady, or Mr. North's companions at the annual smoker of the Careklers, had lied to the detectives. Lawrence Wade—that looked like the man. Wade was missing from the Curfew Club when the police arrived; however, through the good memories of a taxicab driver and a ticket seller, he had been traced to Boston and there arrested in the very act of engaging European passage.

Wade had visited Hanska at about the time of the murder—"as shown by the condition of the body," Wade admitted that fact. "I was there on business for a friend," he said. Pressed to explain why he had made such a sudden trip out of town, he declined to answer. He knew his legal rights—he was a lawyer it appeared—and he would give no further explanation. Lawrence Wade it must be—unless this proved an "inside job." The windows of Captain Hanska's room were both fastened when North discovered the murder, but his outer door, leading into the hall, was unlocked. There were no signs of any entrance by the front door or the basement door. By night, Wade and North must go on the carpet for a little touch of the Third Degree. Inspector McGee was a firm believer in that same Third Degree. Loco tactics he distrusted, with the distrust of a narrow man for the Having completed a three years' course in dentistry in Marquette college in Milwaukee and taken the degree of bachelor of sciences in the university, Dr. Esther N. Farrand, sister of Dr. C. H. Farrand of this city, will enter the profession of dentist in the offices of her brother in the McMillan building.

Miss Farrand was the only woman to take the dentistry course at the college. She has taken the examination from the state board of examiners and will enter the office with her brother in a few weeks.

Aside from her desire to be proficient in the work she has chosen, Miss Farrand is a great believer in out-door sports, and will occupy her time during the next few weeks in playing golf at the Country club.

Miss Farrand is also a graduate of Downer college for girls at Milwaukee. She and her mother will reside at the residence of Miss Farrand's brother, at 1621 Main street.

DETECTIVES COME FOR ELOPING PAIR

Detectives Frank A. Regan and Owen of Minneapolis arrived in La Crosse today carrying warrants for Mrs. William Wren and William Wilcawe who eloped to this city on June 14 and were caught at the carnival grounds Thursday night by the woman's husband and Patrolman Arneson. The couple will be taken to Minneapolis tonight by the detectives to stand trial on a statutory charge. Mr. Wren will accompany them to Minneapolis.

Evening Post.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The stable influence on the course of stock exchange prices today was the formal announcement that the Union Pacific management and the attorney general had agreed on the plan for disposing of that company's $126,000,000 Southern Pacific stock. Its announcement, towards the end of the first hour, was followed by a sharp recovery in prices, Union Pacific leading. The day's total business was, however, small.

In its present mood, the stock exchange would no doubt have been disposed to use the Washington banking and currency proposals for a "bear argument" on the market. Although, however, the new plan, in its varying phases, has this week superseded almost all other topics of Wall street conversation, it has at no time become a visible influence upon values. This was perhaps because, in the obscurity surrounding the questionable features of the plan, it presented, so to speak, no available angle on which to hang conclusions.

Dresser
Scarf.

BY MAY MANTON

No. 738. A Design for embroidering the Ends of a Dresser Scarf Twenty Inches Wide.

The small flowers and leaves can be embroidered in solid work, or the flowers made as eyelets as preferred; the stems are to be outlined; the scalloped edges are to be padded and buttonholed.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TRANSFERRING THESE PATTERNS.

THE window pane method is perhaps the simplest and is particularly successful when the material is thin such as batiste, lawn, or handkerchief linen, the best plan is to pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the window pane and with a sharp pencil trace the design on the fabric or else lay the material on the pattern on top of a table or other hard surface, and carefully trace the design with a well pointed pencil, the design may also be transferred to heavy material by using a piece of transfer or carbon paper, to be placed between the pattern and cloth, using a sharp pointed pencil to secure a clean line.

TRANSFER EMBROIDERY PATTERNS SUPPLIED BY MAIL FOR 10 CENTS EACH.

Patterns for stamping the two ends and four yards of scallops are given.

FOR the benefit of our readers who prefer transfer patterns to work by instead of tracing the design on this page by any of the methods which we have suggested, we have arranged to supply transfer patterns of any of the embroidery designs which are featured, for 10 cents each. Always mention number of design wanted, and address orders to Embroidery Department of this paper.

LAJOIE NOT SORE AT RETIREMENT

CHICAGO, June 28.—There will be no break between Larry Lajoie and the Naps following the reorganization of the Cleveland baseball team by putting Terry Turner at second base in place of Lajoie and giving Larry the role of pinch-hitter. Lajoie was aroused last night over false reports of the motives of Manager Birmingham in making the shift and gave out a red hot statement in which he was reported to have declared he would not submit to the role of bench warmer and would quit baseball before he would stand for it. But Larry announced this morning that there will be no friction over the shift. "I will go right along with the team," said Larry, "and will do as directed by Manager Birmingham."

WILSON BREAKS ANOTHER PRECEDENT; TAKES STEPS TO PREVENT VISITORS FROM USING PRIVATE PHONE IN HIS ROOM AT CAPITOL

President's room at the U. S. Capitol.

President Woodrow Wilson, who counts that day lost whose long descending sun sees not one more precedent smashed to pieces, has ordered another change at the capitol. His private telephone in the president's room, adjoining the lobby of the senate, which hitherto has been where visitors could get at it, is to be moved into a closet. The closet is to have a key, which will be in Mr. Wilson's possession. Heretofore, visitors have always taken a great deal of innocent pleasure in calling up their friends from the president's room, and informing said friends that they were actually using the president's private telephone.

ON LONG CANOE TRIP

INDIANA MAN BEGINS 10,000 MILE PADDLE FROM NEW YORK TO SAN FRANCISCO

ALPINE, N. J., June 28.—John H. Sullivan, Jr., 26, of Valparaiso, Ind., in a specially constructed canoe, 16 feet long, paddled away from here today enroute up the Hudson on a 10,000 mile canoe trip from New York to San Francisco. He left the Hudson River Yacht club of New York late yesterday. Sullivan expects to reach the Pacific coast, via the Panama canal, June 27, 1914.

Sullivan's route lies from here to Albany, on the Hudson river. From the capital he expects to paddle through the Erie canal to Buffalo, thence along Lake Erie to Toledo, Ohio. By way of the Maumee river and Miami river he expects to reach Cincinnati, thence down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans. Hugging the coast of the Gulf and cutting through minor streams in Central America he expects reach Colon and journey through the Panama canal. From there he will continue along the Pacific coast to San Francisco.

BEAUTIFUL MARGUERITE WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Laura Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Emery, to Mr. Norman James Ramsey, of Milwaukee, took place at four o'clock this afternoon in the same house in which the parents of the bride were married thirty-seven years ago. The bride couple stood under an arch of smilax and marguerites, during the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. D. C. Jones, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. A large bunch of marguerites tied with streamers of white chiffon was suspended from the center of the arch. Twelve young ladies carrying daisy chains formed an aisle through which the bride couple passed. Mr. James Kerr sang "Bid me to Love" as the bride party entered the room, followed by the Lohengrin wedding march played by Mrs. Kerr. The chain bearers were the Misses Charlotte, Edith and Jessie Emery, sisters of the bride, Edna, Grace and Agnes Denney, Vera Beardsley, Ruth Donald, Myrtle Moore, Margaret Heyerdahl, Margaret Seide and Gertrude Clement.

The bride looked sweet and girlish in her simple bridal gown of white embroidered crepe which was trimmed with baby Irish lace. She wore a veil and cap fastened with clusters of orange buds. The cap was fashioned from her grandmother's real lace wedding undersleeves. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The decorations were quite elaborate and under the supervision of Mr. Theodore Kienabs. The front porch was screened with boughs of syringas and palms and ferns.

Punch was served here by Miss Charlotte Emery, assisted by Margaret Heyerdahl and Margaret Seide. The Misses Edith Emery and Edna Emery served in the dining room assisted by the Misses Vera Beardsley, Ruth Donald and Gertrude Clements. Ice cream was served by Miss Grace Denney assisted by the Misses Edna Denney and Myrtle Moore. A mound of bride's roses and marguerites centered the table. Festoons of smilax and clusters of marguerites were used in the living room.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Jennie Ramsey of Milwaukee, mother of the groom; Mrs. Martha Wilkison of Ottumwa, Ia.; Mrs. J. J. Seidel and daughter, Margaret, of Warrens, Wis.; Miss Edith Haines of Columbus, Wis.; Prof. and Mrs. Emery of DeKalb, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey will leave for Milwaukee and Chicago, where they will spend a few days before going to their home at Caledonia, Minn., where Mr. Ramsey has charge of the Presbyterian church. Many beautiful presents were presented to the bride couple.

YESKE-BAIER WEDDING

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock occurred the marriage of Bertha Yeske, sister of Mrs. John Bouffleur, and William E. Baier. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Julius Gamm at the German Lutheran church. They were attended by the Misses Helen Yeske, Ethel Bouffleur and Messrs. Ernest Hoffman and Walter Tischner.

The bride wore a gown of crepe du chine trimmed with shadow lace and pearl ornaments and carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. She wore a veil made with cap effect with wreath of roses.

At six o'clock an elaborate wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bouffleur. About sixty guests attended, mostly out of town guests. Mr. and Mrs. Baier will be at home at 1125 Adams street.

BRYANT-HERREN WEDDING
A pretty home wedding took place this morning at 10:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bryant when their only daughter, Mabel Capitoia, was married to Mr. Walter Herren of Madison, Wis. Rev. Henry Faville, pastor of the First Congregational church, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Lydia Kitterman of Tiskilwa, Ill. Miss Nagel sang the bridal music with Miss Huntton as accompanist. The decorations under the supervision of Mr. Carl Schafer were simple and artistic.

The bride couple stood in front of a bow of tall palms, drooping vines, ferns and Easter lilies illuminated by cathedral candles. The bride's gown was of white silk crepe over embroidered taffeta made with court train. She wore a long tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Miss Kitterman wore a white broad-chiffon voile. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, thirty-five guests being present. Mr. and Mrs. Herren left on the noon train for a short trip after which they will go to Omaha, where they will reside.

The out of town guests were Miss Lydia Kitterman of Tiskilwa, Ill.; Miss Bond of De Kalb, Ill.; Miss Shortt of Chicago, Miss Herren of Yorkville, Ill.; Miss Nagel of Glen Ellyn, Minn.; Miss Huntton of Elgin, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. John Herren, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herren and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herren of Oswego, Ill.

SHOWERS FOR MISS FLANAGAN

SALOON LICENSES MAY BE VOIDABLE

Attorneys Declare Twenty-two Saloons Are Not Licensed in Accordance with Baker Law

ATTORNEY GENERAL EXPLAINS LAW

Location Must Be Occupied for Saloon Purposes Since June 30, 1907

According to the statement today of attorneys who are conversant with the proceedings of the common council last night in granting 146 liquor licenses, there are twenty-two of these licenses that, under the former general interpretation of the statute, are voidable because of the fact that the present location of these saloons has not been occupied continuously for saloon purposes since June 30, 1907, the time specified in the Baker law.

Because of the public confusion that exists regarding saloon licenses, Attorney General Owen has issued a statement on the law.

Since the judgment of the supreme court in the Larson case, coming from La Crosse, licensing authorities have had their former interpretation of the law upset and to place them right the attorney general prescribes the following general interpretation of the law:

1. A person in the saloon business June 30, 1907, may be licensed to run a place for such purpose at the same location.

2. If the owner of a premises refuses to rent the same for saloon purposes, or destroyed by fire, or discontinued for such purposes by operation of law, then the person engaged in such business at such place June 30, 1907, may be licensed to run a saloon at another location, on proof being made to the license granting authority of such circumstances.

3. As long as the owner of premises on which a saloon was run June 30, 1907, is willing to rent or himself use the same for saloon purposes the licensee cannot be licensed to run a saloon at a location not used for saloon purposes June 30, 1907.

4. The owner of premises upon which a saloon was run June 30, 1907, may continue the use of such premises for saloon purposes, running the saloon himself or renting it to others.

5. If the saloon was run by a renter on June 30, 1907, and such renter abandons the saloon business, the owner of the premises may rent the same to another who may be licensed to run a saloon at the place.

6. If the owner of a premises was himself running a saloon June 30, 1907, he may drop out of the business and lease the premises to another who may be licensed to run a saloon at that location.

7. He may likewise convey the premises to another and the business may be continued by such grantee or the lessee of such grantee.

8. To entitle a person to a saloon license where the number of saloons exceed the ratio limit of one to 250 of population he must either (a) have been in the business June 30, 1907, and continuously ever since, or (b) be licensed for a place used for such purposes June 30, 1907, and continuously ever since.

9. When a location used for saloon purposes June 30, 1907, had been abandoned for such purposes, the privilege secured to it by section 1565d is forfeited. Likewise, when a person in the saloon business June 30, 1907, drops out of such business, he forfeits the right secured to him by said section.

10. When a municipality votes "wet" after having been "dry" no more than one saloon to each 250 population may be licensed.

ROWS FAMILY HERE DOWN MISSISSIPPI

Man with Wife and Five Children Due Here Tonight After 360 Mile Trip

With La Crosse for their destination, F. Wellington Freeman, accompanied by his wife and five children have traveled 360 miles in rowboats from their homestead in Itasca county, Minn. The ages of the children range from 3 to 12 years. A part of the tedious journey was traversed through the dangerous rapids in northern Minnesota.

About the first of June Mr. Freeman started on the unusual pleasure trip bound for this city. Mr. Freeman was in charge of one of the two fourteen foot boats, in which his wife and four children were passengers. A son rowed the other craft. The second boat was packed with 450 pounds of baggage and necessary food for the journey.

The first twenty miles of the trip was traversed through Norway Brook sixty-five miles through Big Pine river and into the Mississippi at Mission, Minn., and continued down the Mississippi to Winona. The party is scheduled to arrive here late tonight.

of $192,500 to be expended at Oshkosh normal during the next two years. He report of the committee shows that the present main building of the Oshkosh normal school was built a number of years ago and was in such dilapidated condition that a new structure was necessary.

At the Superior normal school a total of $104,800 is to be expended in the next two years in new improvements; $20,000 is to be expended for the purchase of additional land, $70,000 for an addition to the main building of the normal school, $5,300 for library equipment and for other general expenses which make up the grand total for new improvements.

$44,800 for La Crosse

A total of $44,800 is definitely appropriated for improvements at the normal school at La Crosse during the next biennial period. Of this amount $23,600 is to be spent for the purchase of additional land and the remaining balance is appropriated for the purchase of additional apparatus and other permanent property improvements.

A grand total of $158,500 is appropriated for new improvements at the Milwaukee normal school to be made during the coming two years. The bill designates a maximum of $67,500 that may be spent for purchasing additional land. A new power and heating plant is to be erected at a cost of not to exceed $8,000 and there will be other improvements and the purchase of apparatus to make up the total.

At the River Falls normal school $8,000 will be expended for purchasing additional land, $110,000 for the erection of a new normal school building, $14,000 for the furnishing of the building and other permanent improvements, making an aggregate of $145,000 as the maximum to be spent for developing and enlarging the school during the next two years.

$62,600 at Whitewater

A total of $62,600 is to be spent in new improvements at Whitewater. Of this amount $50,000 is to be expended for the erection of a new gymnasium and the equipment of the building. Only $4,600 will be spent for the purchase of additional land.

The financial budget bill calls for a maximum appropriation of $100,400 to be made at the Stevens Point normal during the next two years.

Although the Philadelphia Athletics are far in the lead of the other seven American league clubs, it must not be supposed that the managers of other teams have abandoned pennant hopes. Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators, Joe Birmingham of the Cleveland Naps, Callahan of the Chicago White Sox, and Jake Stahl of the Boston Red Sox are four managers who insist that their respective teams will nose out Connie Mack's Athletics and cap the pennant this fall.

MEET TO CHOOSE HEAD OF SCHOOL

County School Board in Session to Pick Successor to Prof. F. E. Balmer

The county school board is in session this afternoon to pick a successor to Professor F. E. Balmer, principal of the Onalaska agricultural school. The meeting is being held in the school building. At 3:30 this afternoon the board had not yet arrived at a decision. Several names are before them.

Mr. Balmer resigned his position with the La Crosse county school about two months ago, to take a position with the university of Minnesota. He succeeded A. A. Johnson as superintendent of the Onalaska institution, coming here from an agricultural school near Winona.

It was announced at the meeting of the board that a six weeks' summer course, which by state law has supplanted the old style summer institute, for the benefit of La Crosse county teachers, will open at the normal school Monday, June 30.

It was also announced that teachers' examinations will be held as follows:

West Salem, high school building, July 28-29, third grade branches; Bangor, high school building, July 30-31, third grade branches; La Crosse, normal building, August 11-12, for all grades.

An addition is to be made to the main building and two new cottages for domestic science are to be erected at an aggregate cost of $85,700. Aside from $2,700 which is to be spent for the purchase of additional land, the balance will be used for purchasing apparatus and permanent improvements to the present property.

A new gymnasium is to be erected at Platteville at a cost not to exceed $62,000. The bill appropriates $12,000 for additional land, making a grand total of $83,000 in property improvements at this normal school during the next two years.

Dormitory Here

A new dormitory is to be located at one of the normal schools at a cost of $100,000. The board of normal regents is to designate at which normal the dormitory is to be located but there seems to be a consensus of opinion here that the building will be erected at La Crosse.

STORES TO CLOSE ON JULY FOURTH

Merchants and Employees Appeal to Trade to Permit Them a Real Holiday

Although there will be no organized celebration of the Fourth of July in La Crosse with the exception of the Motor Boat club races on the Mississippi river in the evening, all of the business houses in the downtown district will be closed all day on the Fourth, according to an announcement today. The stores will close to allow the clerks and employees to have a day of outing. The retail clothing stores agreed today that no clothing will be sold here and the grocers all over the city have decided to open only until 9 o'clock that morning.

Bearing in mind the experience of Memorial day when the stores were to be closed all day but customers insisted on buying goods that could have been purchased the night before, the grocers and merchants today appealed to their customers to do their buying on the third so as to allow them a holiday. A special appeal is made to union men throughout the city to assist the merchants' employees enjoy their holiday.

It is pointed out that the stores do not open on Sunday and customers do not suffer inconvenience thereby and it is the opinion of the merchants that with the co-operation of their trade they can get through the fourth undisturbed.

It was announced at the police station today that the sale of firecrackers and other fireworks will not be permitted until the first of July and that all firecrackers over three inches in length are forbidden by state law.

DINING CAR FORTRESS

NEGRO CHEF ACCUSED OF ASSAULTING LITTLE GIRL STANDS OFF MEN WITH WARRANT

PUEBLO, Col., June 28.—Harry B. Fields, negro chef on a Pullman car, is under arrest here today charged with assaulting a girl aged 12, of Trinidad, on a Missouri Pacific train, near Ordway.

Fields barricaded himself in the dining car between Horace, Kas., and Pueblo, and armed with two revolvers, defied several attempts to capture him. His car was taken from the train at Horace and Fields kept officers from molesting him until it was again attached to a train moving westward.

Fields is alleged to have forced the girl, at the point of a revolver, to go into the vestibule, where he held her for more than an hour. In a statement to the police, he declares that he did not assault the girl.

EXAMINE FITNESS TO RECEIVE MONEY

U. S. Indian Agent Named to Discover Ability of the Wisconsin Indians to Care for Selves

Albert H. Kneale, formerly agent of the Winnebago Indians in Nebraska, has been appointed to investigate the condition of the Winnebagoes in Wisconsin in relation to their fitness for receiving the money which is being held in trust for the Indians, according to word received by L. C. Compton of Tomah. Mr. Compton has notified several of the prominent Indians in this part of the state that the investigation will take place here in the near future.

That the appointment of the Indian trust fund among the Winnebagoes of this state is opposed by a majority of the Indians themselves is the statement contained in a letter received today by Congressman John J. Esch from John Black Hawk, a chief living at Black River Falls. Black Hawk was one of the two Indian chiefs to go from this state to Washington to attend the conference with the department in relation to the proposed distribution of the fund.

According to Black Hawk's letter to Congressman Esch today, most of the Indians prefer the continuance of the annuity system now in operation, at least for a few years, because they fear that many of the improvident Indians will squander their patronage and become burdens on the state. The Indians are entitled to about $400 each if the apportionment is made. They receive an annuity of between twenty and thirty dollars under the present system.

Attorney J. E. Higbee read a communication to the council urging the appointment of former City Attorney A. H. Schubert to act as counsel for the city in the case of William Brumhke against the city, on the grounds that he (Mr. Higbee) had prosecuted the case against the city when it was tried in circuit court. The case which is for $7,500 alleged to have been received by a son of Mr. Brumhke in an accident on one of the city wagons, has been appealed to the supreme court, having been decided in favor of the city in circuit court.

Mr. Higbee announced that he will appoint another attorney to appear for the plaintiff when it is called in the supreme court.

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE ON AGAIN

Coal Miners on New River to Go Out July 1 and Trouble Spreads

TO GO OUT ON PAINT CREEK

Total of 25,000 Men Will Leave the Workings at Strike Call

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 28.—West Virginia is today on the verge of another industrial war that will eclipse the recent one in the Kanawha coal fields, which took one hundred lives, cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and lasted a year. Miners in the New River fields, numbering close to 15,000, today received a strike call fixing next Tuesday, July 1, as the day for a general walk out. It is expected that 10,000 miners in the Paint and Cabin creek districts will also renew their strike on that date.

The strike call, which was ready to mail Wednesday but was held up when Governor Hatfield asked that the miners confer with the operators, was sent out last night following the breaking off of negotiations. The conferences were held in the governor's office and the chief executive again attempted to act as mediator as he had done in the recent Kanawha strike, but he admitted today that neither side had come anywhere near an agreement.

For some time the Paint and Cabin creek miners have been complaining that the operators have not lived up to the terms of the strike settlement proposal—having violated the main clause, pledging them not to discriminate against the more active union men in taking back the miners. One thousand miners in the district are already out.

JILTED INDIAN GIRL LEAPS TO DEATH

Chief's Niece Kills Self on Storied Rock and Is Found by Rejected Suitor

MEEKER, Col., June 28.—Zanaida, niece of Chief Whispering Pine of the Ute reservation, and a girl of unusual charm, committed suicide today by leaping from Suicide rock, a stone monument of legendary fame which rears its head at the foot of the reservation, and has been the means of many grim tragedies by heart broken maidens of the Ute nation.

Zanaida was courted by many young braves of the tribe. Among her suitors were Conconino, not handsome, but true hearted and upright, and Elk Tooth, debonaire and upstanding, but as fickle as a day in April.

Girl-like, Zanaida fell in love with the handsomer man, and the day for the ceremony was set. Elk Tooth suddenly deserted her for another girl of the tribe and, broken hearted, Zanaida sought surcease in death. The dead girl was found by Conconino.

Historic Crimes and Mysteries

By WALT MASON

The Mistake of the Marquis

HAD Lord Ferraris, who was hanged with a silken rope in 1790, studied the criminal history of his country, he might have thought twice before shooting his servant, who brought him to the gallows. Long before his punishment the British courts had decreed that the shooting of servants by noblemen was a capital crime, rather than a misdemeanor.

Fernando, Marquis de Paleotti, was the head of a noble Italian house, and during the reign of Queen Anne he distinguished himself for ability and valor as a colonel in the imperial army. The Duke of Shrewsbury, an exalted Britisher, visited Rome and fell in love with a sister of the marquis. The marquis followed them, and went to England, and settled down to live happily ever after in the duke's ancestral hall. The marquis followed them. The marquis had expensive tastes, and his private treasury representing an aching void, he rightly figured that his sister would be a great convenience, as the duke had all kinds of plain and fancy money.

This was two hundred years ago and London was well supplied with native born on him again, and his sister refused to come to his relief. Then the next thing the festive marquis knew, he was in jail and being in jail in those days was anything but a picnic. The afflicted nobleman found himself herded in a foul prison with the lowest felons, and unless some body came to his relief it was more than possible he would end his days there. News of his condition was carried to his sister, and once more his good woman came to his relief. She settled with his creditors and he was released.

For an hour and twenty minutes after emerging from the pestiferous prison, the marquis was determined to profit by the lesson he had received. He was going to be virtuous and abandon the feshpots. But presently he came to a place where a little game always was in progress, and he took a hand. So for a time he led the old life, borrowing money, drinking and gambling, and getting into debt deeper every day. One day he was proceeding along the street, with a bad taste in his mouth, wondering where he might raise the price. He turned to his servant, who was following him, and naming a number of former friends, instructed him to call upon them and borrow money.

"It's no use," said the servant, who had been sent upon many similar errands, only to be kicked out; "nobody will lend you any money."

Such an affront from a servant was more than the blue blood of the marquis could endure. It boiled in his veins. Drawing his sword, he slew the unfortunate servant in his tracks, and then went his way, meditating upon the insolence of the lower classes. His surprise was great when he was arrested and taken to jail. Things were indeed come to a pretty pass if a man of his lineage could be incarcerated for such a trifling matter as slaying a servant.

At first he refused to believe that he was in a serious predicament. When the courts understood the facts of the case, and realized that he was the chief representative of the great house of Paleotti, he would be dismissed with apologies. But when he came to trial the judges didn't seem in any way impressed by his exalted station, and they seemed to hold the ridiculous theory that servants were entitled to the protection of the law as much as other people.

The evidence against him was conclusive, and he didn't deny any of it, and the jury had the execrable taste to find him guilty, and he was sentenced to death. The marquis simply couldn't believe it. Such a miscarriage of justice in a civilized country was an impossibility. The matter must be brought to the attention of the king, who wouldn't stand for such an outrage. It was taken to the king, and there was nothing doing. Even his sister could help him no more. Her influence was exerted in vain.

On the morning of March 17, 1718, the marquis was instructed to prepare for the melancholy journey to Tyburn. The plain laybreak to see him suffer, and it wouldn't do to keep them waiting much longer. The condemned man paid no attention to the appeals of the ordinary (chaplain). He spent his time denouncing a country which would put a nobleman to death for the killing of a servant. He pointed out that things were conducted much better in Italy, where there always was sanctuary for a distinguished man who didn't wish to be arrested. He predicted the decline and fall of a government which enforced such a proceeding as his execution.

Arrived at the gallows, his indignation was doubled when he found that he was to hang with a plebeian murderer. He protested so bitterly that the executioner granted his request to be turned off first, and he had the melancholy satisfaction of dying alone.

The marquis was a handsome and talented man, of courtly manners, but so devoted to pride, and so lacking in humanity, that his unfortunate sister was a true mourner when his unprofitable career came to a close.

Gentlemen Made a Practice of Retiring With Their Boots On.

bloods, who gave daily demonstrations in extravagance. It was a time when it was considered fashionable to throw one's party at the birds. Gentlemen made a practice of retiring with their boots on, and gambling was the life work of many aristocrats. Relying upon his sister to attend to small details like paying his debts, the marquis started in to show the London sports the real thing in high life. He spent money as though he owned a newspaper in America, and before long his creditors were so numerous that he couldn't throw a brick without hitting three of them.

Every once in a while, when the creditors became particularly annoying and oppressive, he called upon his sister, and she gave him money to pay up his bills, and they had some affecting interviews. The duchess implored him to brace up, to remember the honor of his house, and to live within his means; but the marquis was quite haughty; he considered her advice impertinence, and hinted that she ought to feel honored to act as his treasurer. Finally the duke came to the conclusion that it was high time for a reform. He failed to see the fun of devoting a portion of his revenues to the payment of the marquis's debts, and told the duchess that it must stop, and she conveyed the information to her brother, but he thought she was just joking.

So he went ahead gambling and drinking and betting, and his creditors came

Every Athlete Examined Before Being Allowed to Compete in Fierce Heat

CHICAGO, June 28.—A torrid wave that converted the stands into a great coatless throng of spectators caused extraordinary precautions to be taken when the pre-Olympic games, the greatest athletic meet ever staged in Chicago formally opened today. A score of physical trainers and physicians were ordered to Grant park to look after the welfare of the athletes and spectators.

Each of the 21 distance runners who lined up at the tape at the start of the Marathon event at 11 a. m. underwent a physical examination. Meet officials fearing prostrations in the grueling run, Boy Scouts, waiting at the outskirts of Chicago to relay to Grant park President Wilson's message of greeting, shed their regulation scout uniforms and slipped into light running suits.

The last stages of the Washington-Chicago run brought the president's message early today to East Chicago, Ind., on schedule time and a few minutes later a boy runner dashed across the Illinois state line. An escort of automobiles waited at Washington park to lead the way into Grant park, where the last boy was slated to finish at 2:30 p. m. Immediately afterward the inter-scholastic events were to be started.

VARSITY BUDGET OUT

STATE SCHOOL AT MADISON WILL HAVE $2,120,174 FOR THE YEAR OF 1913-14—INCREASE $201,000.

MADISON, Wis., June 28.—(Special.)—The financial budget approved by the joint finance committee and filed with the house today calls for a total appropriation for the year 1913-1914 of $2,120,174.00 for the University of Wisconsin. The appropriation for the year 1914-1915 will be $3,009,904.00. The general purposes for which the money will be spent as shown by the budget are:

Purposes	1913-13	1914-15
Operation	$1,814,149	$1,842,879
Property and maintenance	62,000	62,000
New construction	244,025	1,105,025

Total . . . $2,120,174 $3,009,904

The operating expenses of the University for the year 1913-14, according to the budget will be about $1,710,000.00 over the present year, and the increase in operation in the year 1914-1915 over the year 1913-1914 will be about $28,000.00. The increase in property repairs for each of the coming two years will be about $2,000.00 over repairs for the present year. The expenditures for new construction for the next biennial period will be approximately $303,000.00 more than the expenditures authorized for new construction during the present biennial period.

"Pleased to Meet You."

The Americans have a polite habit, on being presented to a new acquaintance, of uttering the words, "Pleased to meet you," although upon what the pleasure can rest, or how they know that it is a pleasure, or why an ordinary incident which is not the fulfillment of any anticipation, and which may turn out to be very disagreeable, should be pronounced at sight to be pleasant, I have never been able to understand.—Saturday Review.

Room Enough

A theater in "one night" towns is always called by the natives the "Opory house," and is usually up one or more flights of stairs, the stage furnished with dim lights, and the dressing room with nothing. In one of these "Opory houses" in southwestern Missouri a certain theatrical manager found but one dressing room—a large apartment beneath the stage.

"Where are the other dressing rooms?" he wanted to know.

"There ain't any others," returned the local impresario.

"Well, what are we going to do? I have a large company of ladies and gentlemen, and they cannot dress in this one room."

"What's the matter?" returned the Missourian. "Ain't they speakin'?"

CONVICT PASTOR OF MISCONDUCT

Production of Twin Sisters in Court Hurts the Cause of Jersey Preacher

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 28.—The sudden production in the court of quarter sessions of twin sisters as much alike as "two peas in a pod" instead of confusing the jurors, convinced them that somebody had something to conceal and they promptly convicted the Rev. Willis S. Macrorie on the charge of misconduct with Miss Edith Nelson, formerly one of his choir singers in Somerville, N. J.

Macrorie on the stand late yesterday repudiated the confession signed by him though admitting the genuineness of his signature.

Miss Alice Nelson, twin sister of Miss Edith Nelson, was in court with her sister, but was not called to the attention of Dr. Bullman, as had been expected. The physician had testified that he had an examination of Miss Nelson at the request of Macrorie who paid $50 for it and found that the girl's charge against the preacher was unfounded. The prosecutor intimated by his cross-examination that it was the twin Alice that Dr. Bullman examined.

Edith Nelson herself repudiated her accusation and her mother testified in behalf of the clergyman, but his letters to the girl, several of which contained money, ranging from $1 to $5 bills, did not favorably impress the jury.

BLOTCHES ON FACE DRY AND SCALY

Eczema Began in Hair. Spread to Face. Came on Hand and All Over Fingers. Itching Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

205 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—"Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches, then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large; on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The inside of my hands were all little lumps as though full of shot about one-sixteenth of an inch under the skin. Then they went to the outside and between and all over my fingers. It also began on the bottoms of my feet and the calves of my legs, and itch, oh, my! I never had anything like it and hope I never will again. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work.

"I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more using them as per directions and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me." (Signed) Benj. CHURCH NEWS

Look into Morals Of Panama Expo

Churches are insisting upon guarantee from those who are to run the Panama exposition at San Francisco, and from the civic authorities, that morals of exposition and city shall be what they think they ought to be. Otherwise, say the churches, they will not encourage their people to attend. Bishop W. M. Bell of the United Brethren church, in an action of that body's recent general conference, laid the subject before Mayor Rolph of San Francisco recently, and has received in response a communication in which the mayor gives the necessary guarantees. He says:

"The good name of San Francisco and her moral welfare are of the keenest concern to me and to the city administration. I do not hesitate to say, and to guarantee to your church and to all churches, that San Francisco and the exposition may be safely entrusted to those in authority. They are sincere and determined in their efforts to suppress vice and crime, to make San Francisco a clean, wholesome metropolis, worthy to be the world's exposition city, and to make the exposition itself all that the Christian people of the nation could wish it to be."

Preparations are making, under these guarantees, to carry on religious work during the exposition. So far as plans have been determined, there is to be a unity in the work that will make church union, so to speak, one of the exhibits. The Christian associations, the Brotherhoods and the Endeavor societies have thus far led, but it is stated that all will come in. United Brethren leaders announce themselves satisfied with Mayor Rolph's guarantee.

Would Lead in Unity Plans

Essaying to lead in church unity plans, the Protestant Episcopal church has, in its general mission board, which represents both its home and foreign work, pulled out of the United Missionary campaign, and the president of that campaign, Bishop Lloyd of the Episcopal board, has resigned. The United Missionary campaign represents all other Protestant missionary work in America, and is getting ready for big meetings that are to start in the fall and conclude with a united appeal to all members of all churches for money. It claims to be the biggest effort yet made for missions, and the best expression of real church unity yet given.

Layman Conduct Missionary Campaign

The United Missionary campaign, taking in Canada as well as the United States, representing all Protestant home and foreign missionary societies save the Episcopal, has placed its administrative work in the hands of the Laymen's Missionary movement. The first named is restricting the country, and placing trained leaders in large cities. Some of these leaders will give a few weeks, others several months to organization. Sufficient numbers of leaders are available, it is said, to enable the movement to place one in every city, and district the whole of the territory. The education movement is preparing to issue literature in vast quantities, and will take up a vigorous newspaper advertising and publicity plan.

Where Fogs Are Thickest.

"In going from Rome to Paris," said a young man, "I paid extra money to cross the St. Gothard, but that lofty Alpine pass was a disappointment. It was foggy, and I saw nothing of the Alps. Hard luck, eh?" "Not at all," replied the globe trotter. "Nearly everybody finds the St. Gothard wrapped in fog and mist. The place in fact, is the foggiest place in the world. London has 38 days of fog a year; Munich has 47; Hamburg has 52; Tegernsee, in the Bavarian Alps, has 134. Overtopping all of them comes the St. Gothard, with an annual average of 277 foggy days."

Review—The Victories of Faith.

Reading Lesson Only. Acts vii:9-16; Heb. xi:20-22.

Golden Text—This is the victory that hath overcome the world, even our faith. 1 John v:4.

Golden Text—Ye5.

The following questions may be used as an original lesson or as a review of the twelve preceding lessons:

The date and title of each lesson, where found, Golden Text and one question from each lesson follow:

April 6. Jacob and Esau. Gen. xxi:27-34; xxvii:1-45. Golden Text—Jehovah is a God of justice; blessed are they that wait for Him. Isa. xxx:18.

(1.) Verses 27-28—Take two boys, one fond of hunting and the other inclined to industrial pursuits, and say from your observation which is the more likely to be prosperous in life, and why.

April 13. Jacob at Bethel. Gen. xxviii:10-22. Golden Text—I am with thee and will keep thee whithersoever thou goest. Gen. xxviii:15.

(2.) Verse 10—What in all probability would be Jacob's state of mind when leaving home?

April 20. Jacob's Meeting With Esau. Gen. xxxiii:1-17. Golden Text—Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. Eph. iv:32.

(3.) Verses 6-8—In view of God's forgiveness and his promises to protect him why was Jacob afraid?

April 27. Joseph Sold Into Egypt. Gen. xxxvii. Golden Text—Love thy neighbor. 1 Cor. xiii:4.

(4.) Verses 5-8—Would you say, and why, that Joseph did wisely or not in telling his brothers his dreams?

May 4. Joseph Interprets Dreams. Gen. xl. Golden Text—The breath of the Almighty giveth them understanding. Job xxxiii:8.

(5.) Verses 6-8—If there is nothing in dreams in these days, as most people seem to think, why is it that some dreams give us pain and other dreams give us pleasure?

May 11. Joseph Made Ruler of Egypt. Gen. xli:1-45. Golden Text—God giveth grace to the humble. 1 Pet. v:5.

(6.) Verses 15-16—Take great men as statesmen, poets, musicians, philosophers, orators, prophets and others and state how much of their ability and opportunity came from God and how much is due to themselves. (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

May 18. Joseph Meets His Brethren. Gen. xlii. Golden Text—Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Gal. vi:7.

(7.) Verses 1-6—Was it better or worse for the world, or the cause of God, or the men themselves, that Jacob's sons committed the cruel sin of selling their brother? Why?

May 25. Joseph and Benjamin. Gen. xliii. Golden Text—He that loveth his brother abideth in the light. 1 John ii:10.

(8.) Verses 11-14—What was the pressure or motive which finally induced Jacob to let Benjamin go to Egypt with the other brothers?

June 1. Joseph Tests His Brethren. Gen. xlv. Golden Text—Confess, therefore, your sins one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. Jas. v:16.

(9.) Verses 1-11—Is it or not, and why, sometimes necessary for a kind heart to act the part of apparent cruelty to accomplish good ends?

June 8. Joseph Forgives His Brethren. Gen. xlv:1-17. Golden Text—Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! Ps. cxxxiii:1.

(10.) Verses 1-4—Does a sin twenty-two years old, when it is resurrected, give the conscience the same acute sense of guilt as a sin more recently committed? Give your reasons.

June 15. Jacob Before Pharaoh. Gen. xlv:28-17. Golden Text—To them that love God all things work together for good. Rom. viii:28.

(11.) Verse 30—How would you describe the feelings of Jacob on meeting Joseph and the great emotion which made him want to die?

June 22. The Binding Effect of Sin. (Temperance Lesson.) Amos vi:1-8. Golden Text—Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live. Amos v:14.

(12.) Verse 6—How is it that active Christians do not drink strong drink and that those who do are generally outside of the churches? Lesson for Sunday, July 6, 1913. The Child Moses Saved From Death. Ex. 1:8-14, 22-11:10.

Mathematics and Real Knowledge

The teacher was hearing her class of small boys in mathematics. "Edgar," she said, "if your father can do a piece of work in seven days, and your Uncle William can do it in nine days, how long would it take both of them to do it?"

"They would never get done," answered the boy, earnestly. "They would sit down and tell fish stories."

Left All the Smell for Him

Some federal officers in the Civil war once sought shelter for the night in an old, tumble down hut. About 2 o'clock a polecat announced its presence in its own peculiar way. A German sat up and looked helplessly about him. The others were all sleeping peacefully.

"Mein gracious!" he exclaimed, in tones of despair. "All the rest asleep and I've got to smell it all."

The Wrong View

The angry citizen puffed into the office of the city editor. "See here, sir," he yelled, "what do you mean by publishing my resignation from my political office in this way?"

"You gave the story out yourself, didn't you?" asked the editor. "Of course I did," replied the angry citizen. "But your fool paper prints it under the head of 'Public Improvements.'"

A Noise From Human Bones.

Among savage nations it is often customary to use human bones for the purpose of making horns, and a terrible screech can be brought out of these awful instruments. The braves in many South American tribes in the vicinity of the Amazon employ these peculiarly constructed horns as instruments of war, playing on them as they enter into conflict and employing their harsh, screeching tones to drown the cries of the wounded and inspire their foes with terror. The chief warriors of the tribe make it one of the main points of their fighting to capture and kill the chosen chiefs of the other side to make horns out of their bones.

Ruskin's Burlesque of Shelley.

There were recently sold at auction in London some famous letters, among them one by Ruskin denouncing Shelley's style—"one might write Shelley by Shrewsbury clock." He then proceeds to give a specimen of how it could be done:

It was a lumpy islet
By anemone and violet
Like mosaic paven.

There sat a gentleman—flushed and shy—
And a girl with corkscrew curl in her eye.
On the grass between was a large eel pie
And a ham bone, cleanly shaven.
And the gentleman asked in accents mild,
"Was it quite enough soaked before it was biled?"

And the lady replied as she pulled a violet
Off the little lawn islet,
"Didn't I tell you—Jane would spile it?"

An Important Omission.

The doctor who laid down the requisites of the perfect baby omitted the most essential one—the baby must be yours.

POEMS

You Ought To Know

PORTIA'S SPEECH ON MERCY
(By William Shakespeare)
The quality of mercy is not strained
It drops as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is blest
That blesseth him that gives and him
That takes.

'Tis mightiest in the mightiest
It becomes the throned monarch better than his crown;
His sceptre shows the force of moral power,
The attribute to awe and majesty
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;

But mercy is above this scepter's sway;
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings;
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then like God's likeness wear.

When mercy seasons justice.

He Could Understand.

An Orange gentleman was explaining to his four-year-old nephew why the original of the "Winged Victory" in the parlor had no head.

"We are sure it had one once," he said, "but there was a great fire or earthquake, and the statue fell down and was broken. Years afterwards men dug in the ruins of the city and found the body of the statue, but they could not find the head. Probably it had rolled away and some boy had picked it up and carried it off."

The four-year-old thrilled with his den interest.

"Boys would do that," he said. "They stole our gate."—Newark News.

First Run on a Bank.

The first "run" on banking institutions in London was in 1667. Mary Lombard street goldsmiths and bankers had lent out the money intrusted to them, and being called upon for payment, were unable to meet the demand. A crowd of creditors and others assembled, and a riot followed, in which four bankers were hanged to their own doors before order could be restored and the angry creditors persuaded that they were not being swindled.

A Wonderful Creature.

The polyp is the most remarkable creature on earth. If cut transversely or longitudinally into several parts, each will become a perfect animal. Trembly turned them inside out and they ate and enjoyed themselves as much as ever. He slit two longitudinally, placed the halves together and united them into two animals. He divided two transversely and created two with two heads. He pushed one down the throat of another, and a third down the throat of the second, and thus formed a creature with three heads.

Steadfastness Key to Success.

Many a man falls in life not because he lacks ability or enthusiasm, or a general desire to get on in the world, but because he lacks steadfastness of purpose.

Value of Association.

Nobody ever did people any good by standing aloof. If the pencils of an electric lamp are to shine they must first touch and then keep close together.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks. NEW YORK, June 28.—The stock market opened dull.

11 a. m.—Trading was dull during the first hour. Union Pacific showed more strength than other leading issues on the expectation of favorable action on the dissolution matter. There was a decline in Steel of 1-8c, the stock being fairly firm, but heavy. Mexican Central preferred showed a gain of 7-8 after denial of the rumors of a receivership for the system.

New York Money. NEW YORK, June 28.—Bar Silver: London 26 15-16; New York 58 3/4c. Demand sterling 4.86.

Oats—No. 3 white 41 1-2 to 42c; No. 4 white 41 1-2 to 42 1-2c; standard 43c.

Chicago Grain Review. CHICAGO, June 28.—Wheat and other grains started higher today because of the heat wave but on a bulge of only 1-4c there was liberal selling of wheat, induced by conditions abroad and the feeling that crop damage due to the hot weather was being over-estimated. The result was that the market closed 1-2 to 5-8c under the opening prices.

Corn started firm on the strength of hot weather over the corn belt, but offerings were better today and prices slumped gradually until at the close July was 3-8c and September 5-8c under the day's opening.

Oats moved in sympathy with the other grains after an excited opening after prices were bid up 7-8c and in a rapid slump closed the day 7-8c under the market's opening.

Provisions were inclined to be weaker on an easier hog market and closed a trifle lower.

TWO AUTOISTS KILLED

LAPORT, Ind., June 28.—William M. Hamilton and Bernard Duffy, foreman in the Michigan City, Ind., car factory, met death early today and Joseph Albright and Norman Lally of Michigan City, were seriously injured when their automobile plunged into a ditch and turned turtle near here.

It Would Seem So.
"What do you consider the most important even in the history of Paris?" asked the obsequious landlord of the American tourist. "Well," replied the tourist, who had grown weary of distributing tips, "so far as financial prosperity is concerned, I should say the discovery of America was the making of this town."

Would Aid Sericulture.
The judicious payment of bounties for fresh cocoons and spinning, and, above all, instruction in practical sericulture in elementary schools, as well as agricultural colleges, are today recommended as the most efficacious means of combating the decline of sericulture in France.

Rather Dull.
When we get down to it, life hasn't half as many complications as a ten-cent melodrama.

Kind of Boy He Liked.
Mother—Is James a nice boy for you to play marbles with, sonnie?
Sonnie—Sure. I can beat him every time.

Watching The Scoreboard

Manager Doolin out of the game the Phillies snowed under by the Dodgers. Eighteen hits off Mayer and Brennan were good for 26 bases for Brooklyn. Eight of the hits were doubles and Stack was the only Dodger failing to connect safely.

The Giants were ready to take advantage of the Phillies and advanced to within a game and a half of the leaders. The tussle with James Tesreau continues. The Boston rallies were killed by double plays.

If St. Louis and Pittsburgh could have spared any more pitchers they might have used them in their 12 inning fight. The Pirates used three of the Cardinals' hurlers and sent four of their own to the firing line. Daniels and Cree were the only Yankees to hit safely in the first game of the double header with Boston. Janusz cracked out two doubles and Cree drew a single. The New Yorkers did better in the second game, getting seven hits off Beckett, but lost.

Washington and Philadelphia tallied but six hits in the first game of their double header. Walter Johnson did not let a Mackman reach third and McInnis, Barry and Lapp were the only ones to hit safely. Brown also pitched a three hit game.

Doubtful of God's Power.
"Out of the mouth of babes" frequently come reproaching, regenerating hints of high spiritual value. A little girl whose father was very ill was asked if she had prayed for his recovery. "No," she replied, her innocent eyes wide and solemn. "I did think of it, but then I wondered if it would be any use. I know God's bigger 'n' wiser than people, but I didn't know if he could kill germs."

Polk Was First "Dark Horse."
The first man in a national convention to be spoken of as a "dark horse" was James K. Polk, who was nominated for president at the Democratic national convention of 1844. His opponents in the convention were Martin Van Buren and Lewis Cass.

COULON'S DELAY MAY LOSE BELT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 28.—Slightly miffed because bantam-weight champion Johnny Coulon wired a postponement of his July bout for the title with Kid Williams of Baltimore, promoter Tom McCarey, who saw a shekel making opportunity glide away, announced today that unless Coulon enters the ring with the Baltimore bantam later he will give his diamond belt, emblematic of the championship, to Williams. Thereafter, so far as Vernon, Cal., is concerned, Williams will be the champion.

ARREST HANDBOOK MEN

CHICAGO, June 28.—Detectives armed with capisases today made wholesale arrests in a crusade against alleged handbook men, indicted by the grand jury last night, as a result of a rambling war started by the police department several weeks ago. Nineteen men were indicted and ten of these were under arrest today.

Last Witch Burning.

There are countries in which the execution of women as witches is only a thing of yesterday. The last instance of witch burning occurred as recently as 1888 in Peru, and in other parts of South America cases continued to occur until well into the second half of the nineteenth century. England's own last conviction for witchcraft took place at Hertford in 1712, and Scotland condemned a witch ten years later, while Spain and Germany retained a judicial belief in witches and the justice of killing them until 1782 and 1796.

A Relic of History.

A newly rich woman, who was anxious to make a favorable impression in her neighborhood, decided to show her collection of antiques to the bishop when he called. The time came, and one by one she displayed the whole collection, giving him the history of each piece. "There," she said, pointing impressively to an old yellow teapot, "that teapot was used in the Boston tea party."

Save the Middle-Aged.

"Save the babies," was the cry of the last decade. "Save the middle-aged," will be the cry of this. The real race suicide is not in the insufficiency of births, but in the inadequate knowledge of the diseases of maturity and in the inadequate care and prevention of these diseases.—Richard Barry, in the Century.

Duty as a Reformer.

There is no such reformer as an exacting duty. Note the asceticism of athletes and scouts. The ravages of drink are abated as machinery, with its demand for a clear brain and steady nerves, is multiplied on every hand. Each new stress of business and professional rivalry puts a fresh premium on sobriety and wise restraint.

Worth Knowing.

Onions that are overstrong in flavor may be rendered less by slicing, then putting in a colander and pouring boiling water over them. After this plunge into ice water and let remain for half an hour. This will leave them sweet and crisp.

Government is a Necessity.

"Government is a necessity, and not a luxury, and no government has the right to take from the taxpayer one cent more than is absolutely necessary to conduct the business of government effectively and economically."—Thomas R. Marshall.

Why March is Shortest Month.

A Kansas girl observes that March is the shortest month of the year "because the wind blows three days out of every week."

When the Truth is Lost.

Every duty we omit obscures some truth we should have known.—John Ruskin.

BROOKLYN DEFEATS LEAGUE LEADERS

Stack in Rare Form and Dodgers Have Little Trouble in Winning

GIANTS CUT DOWN THE LEAD

Beat the Braves at Polo Grounds and Creep Up on the Phillies

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Brooklyn 6; Philadelphia 1
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 28.—With Stack pitching in rare form, the Dodgers had little trouble taking yesterday's game from the Phillies, 6 to 1. The Brooklyn pitcher struck out six men and allowed but three hits. Score: R H E

The Unreturning Step.

There is much in an unreturning step. Stanley every morning began where he left off the night before. He explored Africa. The postman today began where he began yesterday; he renews acquaintance with Tompkins square.

An Iceless Refrigerator.

What might be termed an iceless refrigerator has been invented by an Oregon man, a double-walled chest, between the walls of which is packed salt to protect its contents from surrounding warm air.

Wall Vases.

Tall wicker vases and baskets of many shapes and sizes to hang on the wall are favorite flower holders. Grays, greens, pinks, browns and blues are only a few of the many colors seen.

SEES LOW WAGE AID TO THE SOCIAL EVIL

Mrs. Raymond Robins.

Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago, president of the National Women's Trade Union League of America, says that investigations have brought out a close relationship between low wages and the social evil. "That there is commercialized vice we all know," says Mrs. Robins, "and that it sends its representatives into the day's work of factory and store we also know. But it should be definitely understood that there are girls by the tens of thousands who have maintained the integrity of their womanhood in the face of great personal suffering and self-sacrifice, as well as in the face of grave temptation."

ANNOUNCE PAST WEDDING

NEW YORK, June 28.—Miss Beale Sissions, society stage beauty, has announced to her friends that since last Christmas she has been the wife of William F. Baldwin of Pittsburgh. She is the daughter of Lieut.-Colonel Benjamin R. Russell, U. S. Marine corps, retired.

Limitation May Be Gainful.

Cowper could tell a story better and more tersely in rhyme than in prose. The builder of engines for ships has long been teaching the builder of engines for mills how to save space, materials and coils. In much the same fashion the automobile is pointing the power house to new economies.

Taking a Bath

In a fine porcelain or enameled tub is a luxury. You feel twice as clean when you come out as you do from the old style tin or other affair.

The cost of such plumbing may have scared you from changing your old-fashioned bath room into a modern one. It will be a pleasure to us to clear your mind on that question. We shall be glad to show you that the cost is much less than you imagine.

U. S. COTTON REPORT

WASHINGTON, June 28.—America's cotton crop for 1912 was the biggest ever produced, with the single exception of 1911. Census statistics, issued today, showed last year's total to be $14,313,015 bales. This is eleven per cent less than the famous crop of 1911, but more than that of any other year. It is estimated that the 1912 crop was worth $920,630,000. Texas alone produced almost one-fourth of the world's cotton crop.

Having Too Many Things.
Many nervous, irritable, dissatisfied, unhappy women would become calm and contented if they would stop give or throw away half of their belongings. Some have abandoned their residences and taken their families into hotels or boarding houses who could have continued to keep up their homes if, instead of giving to the houses themselves, they had done away with the superfluous furnishings.

IN FIELDING AND PITCHING DES MOINES CLUB IN WESTERN LEAGUE HAS EDGE ON OPPONENTS; BUT DENVER LEADS IN RACE

When the Western league season started the Des Moines club was picked as a second division team, and its showing during the first month of the pennant race indicated that the team would run true to entering the past month has been the sensation of the season. The club leads all other teams in the league in fielding, and is strong in the box. The work of Rogge, pitcher; Joe Leonard, third baseman, and Sleight, catcher, has been especially noteworthy. Des Moines is now third in the race, with Denver leading and St. Joseph second.

Keep the Bacon at Home

Remember when Jack Johnson, the black man, bruised Jim Jeffries at Reno? He wired his mother, "I'm bringing home the bacon." In this case "the bacon" was a large bunch of money.

It is a wise plan to keep the bacon at home. Money in circulation around home is much more useful to yourself and your community than it is if it circulates at a distance.

This is merely a hint in favor of Home Trade against the Mail Order habit.
